STATE BALLOT FRAUDS CHARGED

Today

Bewildered Wall Street. What About Russia? What, No Prisons? Woman's Day.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"I tell my husband I don't know what to tell him."

Wall Street doesn't know what to tell the speculators. Yesterday American Telephone and Telegraph declared the regular dividend at the rate of 9 per cent, and instead of going up the market went down.

Wall Street is as difficult as the watch belonging to the dormouse at the mad hatter's tea party. The dormouse said he put the best butter in his watch, "but nothing seems to please it."

Russia has always been friendly to this country. And it is not the business of the United States to tell Russia what kind of government she must have. We don't like their kind, they don't like ours.

But there is no reason why we should be rude or silly about it.

THERE IS business to be done in Russia and there will be more business later, for the Russians are not failing, in accordance with the predictions of our "best minds."

Russia has said unpleasant things about us, but we have said worse things about Russia. We need business, and Russia has it. That is the main thing, and if we could recognize the brutalities of czardom, why not sovietism?

DEEDS, NOT words, distinguish the Russians. The other day 25,000 Moscow white-collar workers were put to work on farms, to teach them EFFICIENCY.

Now the Soviet government rules that any worker who "loafs one work day a month" shall be discharged.

It would surprise 12,000,000 Americans looking for jobs to hear that this severity is made necessary by Russia's shortness of labor. There are jobs for everybody, even women and children.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, laid up with a slight attack of flu, is working on his first United States budget in bed and will soon be talking to President Hoover about those European debts, which we shall probably NOT collect.

If we are not to get that money, it will be well for Congress to know it, and not casually add to next year's budget one hundred and fifty millions of dollars that taxpayers will have to produce when Europe refuses to do so.

THE NEXT few lines will interest Europe, and amuse "I told you so" wets, who said prohibition wouldn't work. The Attorney General announces that, in view of the "wet vote," he will not ask for money to build more federal prisons.

All the United States jails were overflowing with BOOTLEGGERS AND THEIR EMPLOYES and more were to be built at once.

The Attorney General thinks they won't be needed now, which will surprise sincere prohibitionists, who believed that prohibition would empty jails, insane asylums and poor houses.

THIS IS woman's day, and as Mrs. Eddy said when this writer interviewed her long ago:

"It is the day of mind over matter."

Amy Johnson Mollison, who recently married the British flier holding the record from London to South Africa, has just beaten her distinguished husband's record across the desert of Sahara.

She made a hop from Oran in Algeria to Garo, 1,400 miles further south, in 13 hours and a few minutes.

The British empire may be tottering, but English girls are not tottering.

IDA M. TARBELL, writing in December Cosmopolitan magazine, asks:

"What is the matter with the country? Has our plan failed?"

Nobody seems able to answer the first question.

Our plan hasn't failed, of course, perhaps because we haven't any definite plan, although Miss Tarbell says we have a plan just as difinite as that of Russia.

Her article is encouraging. She reminds you that when this government was established it had fewer than 4,000,000 people, and there wasn't enough money in the treasury to pay soldiers who fought against England. She might have added that only one mechanic, a New England carpenter, was able to earn one dollar a day, all year round.

THE LATEST killing in a New York gambling resort would interest Bret Harte, who invented the finest gambler in literature. The corpse of Gerald Nigro was picked up amid chairs and tables overturned, playing cards strewn everywhere, and two deuces and two treys were found in the dead man's vest pocket.

It is dangerous to carry extra deuces and treys in a game in which both sometimes are "wild" and as valuable as aces.

ROOSEVELT AIDE HEARD IN U. S. PROBE

Testifies to Threats And Tampering With Machines

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The committee on campaign expenditures of the National House of Representatives today turned the spotlight of inquiry on last week's Pennsylvania elections and heard charges that 2,000 complaints on election day here involved:

Wholesale illegal assistance to voters.

Intimidation, threats and bodily violence.

Vote purchasing and distribution of liquor.

Vote machine tampering so as to prevent the Democratic ticket lever from working.

Harry Sloberman, one of several lawyers in charge of receiving complaints at the headquarters of S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Roosevelt Independent League, testified regarding the complaints.

HAZLETT ON STAND

Among the witnesses on the stand was James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Recorder of Deeds of Philadelphia.

In answer to Wilson's questions he denied any knowledge that the Republican organization had decreed a $1,500,000 city loan just before election so that city and county employes would have money to pay contributions to the Republican organization.

Clashes between lawyers and Congressmen characterized the opening of the investigation. The verbal fireworks were mainly between Representative John E. Nelson (Rep.), of Maine, and Wilson, who questioned witnesses.

The highlight of the session came when Thomas Hilton, Negro, a voter in the Eleventh division of the Twentieth Ward, charged that State Representative Clinton O. Sowers, a candidate for re-election, "passed out money which bought 200 votes."

Joseph G. Tumililo, another attorney, who had charge of the South Philadelphia division of the

Douglas Sues To Get Fees For City

John Douglas, Jr., as a citizen, today filed suit in behalf of the city before Alderman T. A. Flanigan to collect several hundred thousand dollars in fees and penalties from four sand and gravel companies said to have occupied wharf frontage.

The suits were directed against the Iron City Sand Company, George S. Vang, president; the Pittsburgh Gravel Company, C. C. Patterson; the Keystone Sand Company, and the Inland River Wharf Company, Alex W. Dann.

Douglas said additional suits would be entered against all boats plying the local rivers which have failed to pay the wharf fees required by ordinance. He placed the total sum involved at around $500,000.

TUBE CITY SET TO BAR BUSES

McKeesport police today notified drivers of all buses, including those of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, that they would not be permitted to enter that city tomorrow unless they had paid the annual license fee of $35.

Officials saw in failure of the bus companies to pay the fee, a probable legal fight.

Heretofore, they asserted, the fee had been paid well in advance. A city ordinance, in effect for seven years, fixes the license charge and the date on which it must be paid.

In addition to the Motor Coach Company, bus lines affected are those of the West Penn Railways, Port Vue Bus Company, McKeesport Transit Company and the Mon Bus Company.

Estep to Get Copy Of Ellenbogen Papers

Congressman Harry A. Estep today obtained an order from Federal Judge Nelson McVicar for a certified copy of the naturalization papers of Henry Ellenbogen, Democrat-Independent, who on the face of returns has defeated Estep, Republican, for a seat as representative from the Thirty-fourth Congressional District.

Ellenbogen became a citizen on June 17, 1926. The constitutional requirement of seven years' citizenship before taking office is the point at issue.

Shower of Meteors Fails to Show Here

The meteor shower scheduled last night failed to appear, Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of the Allegheny Observatory today said:

"Most probably the meteors were pulled out of their path by some planet. There is a possibility that the exhibition which appears once every 33 years will take place next year."

Hitler Asked to Form New Cabinet

THUG SLAYS MAN, KIDNAPS GIRL

ASK HITLER TO FORM CABINET

Von Papen Resigns as Parties Refuse Support

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Hard on the heels of Chancellor Franz von Papen's resignation, President Paul von Hindenburg tonight invited Adolf Hitler to come to Berlin to negotiate in the formation of a new coalition cabinet.

Von Papen and his "cabinet of aristocrats" resigned because of the Chancellor's inability to form a national ministry. The resignations were accepted but Von Papen was asked and agreed to remain in office until a new government is formed.

Taking personal charge of the negotiations, Von Hindenburg immediately sent telegrams to Hitler, National Socialist leader, and Herr Schaffer, of the Bavarian Peoples' party, in Munich, asking them to come to Berlin Saturday. Both had refused to co-operate with Von Papen.

HUGENBERG INVITED

The President also invited Dr. Alfred Hugenbergfi Nationalist leader; Father Kaas, chairman of the Catholic Centrist party, and Herr Dingeldy, of the Peoples' party, to participate in the coalition negotiations.

Von Papen, who has exercised virtual dictatorial powers over the Reich as personal appointee of Von Hindenburg since June of this year, conferred for an hour and a half with the aged Von Hindenburg and then submitted his cabinet's resignation.

The cabinet once again made Hitler, National Socialist chieftain, the "man of the hour" in Germany. Lieut. Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, Von Papen's minister of defense, came out into the open with a boom for Hitler as chancellor.

HITLER BACKED

Other influential statesmen joined his camp, urging that Hitler take over leadership of a ministry embracing the Nazis, Nationalists and members of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's Centrist party.

Von Papen's resignation was due to the refusal of Hitler and other political leaders to participate in a coalition with him. Hitler stated flatly he would not join in the government while Von Paper has a desk in the Wilhelmstrasse.

The Centrists and leaders of the powerful Bavarian Peoples' party were equally determined not to negotiate with Von Papen.

'BANK BOOKS PERSONAL'—SHELBY

Commissioner Denies Receiving Money From Utilities

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, Uniontown, who had previously ignored the request of the State Senate Utility Investigating Committee for his banking and brokerage accounts, said today in a letter that he had never received any money from public utilities and had no connection with any utility. He said his bank accounts represent only his personal and private transactions. The letter was written before the committee voted to issue subpenas for such bank records.

Another reaction today from the committee's move to investigate the accounts of present and former Public Service Commissioners was a letter from Ira Jewell Williams, Philadelphia, attorney for former Commissioner James S. Benn.

WILLIAMS' REQUEST

Williams asked the committee's permission to attend all hearings and cross-examine witnesses in the interest of his client. Oliver K. Eaton, committee counsel, had previously refused this permission after Williams had declined to permit Benn's bank and brokerage accounts to be examined by the investigators.

Williams wrote that "no one has ventured to make any charge, or any suggestion of a charge" against Benn and that anyone doing so "should be held to a strict accountability."

The attorney repeated previous assertions that any scrutiny of Benn's brokerage accounts by the Pennsylvania Securities Commission were "wholly without statutory or other authority." He continued:

"If it was done under instructions of the chief executive, it was equally without legal right, since he is not vested either by

POMERENE HITS BANK HOARDING

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—The bank which is 75 per cent or more liquid and refuses loans to business and industry "is a parasite in the community and deserves the condemnation of every thinking man and woman," Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, today told the eighth annual meeting of the New England Council today. He said:

"The money in their vaults was earned by the people and belongs to them. What right have they to refuse to loan it back to the people, who may need it to employ men needing work?"

Pomerene admitted that not more than 10 per cent of the banks fell into this class.

Pomerene blamed the depression on "extravagance" and the "speculative spirit" that seemed to possess everyone.

He made a thinly veiled attack on Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, who originally demanded $45,000,000 of the $300,000,000 direct relief fund provided for the states, pointing out:

"The $300,000,000 under control of the R. F. C. is not to be distributed pro rata, nor among the states according to population; nor in response to political urgency, but only and solely upon a basis of need actually shown and after local means are shown to be inadequate."

VICTIM HELD PRISONER 6 HOURS

Escort Tied, Hurled From Car as Police Race in Pursuit

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A youthful kidnap-killer early today shot and killed the escort of one young woman and later held up a second couple, abducted the girl in the automobile, attacked her, and for six hours compelled her to drive the car on around the South Side as he eluded scores of police cars.

Just before daybreak the hoodlum let the hysterical girl drive to her home, a half-block from which he jumped out of the car and escaped.

Jordan was slain near midnight. He and Miss Emma Danke, 25, were sitting in an automobile in front of a friend's home when the robber appeared. Jordan evidenced intention of resisting the holdup and was shot and killed. The slayer fled.

A half hour later the killer opened the door of the car in which Miss Henry and James Guisinger, 23, were sitting in front of the girl's home.

The bandit entered the car and compelled Guisinger to drive into an alley. There he tied Guisinger's hands and feet, tossed him into the rumble seat. He then gagged the girl and attacked her.

Compelling the girl to drive the car, he pushed Guisinger out a few blocks away, and left him lying on the street.

Miss Henry was kept in the car. The bandit, covering her with his pistol, forced her to drive the car through the South Side. Several times, she said, they heard the scream of sirens of police cars nearby.

The baby, son of Elliott Roosevelt, second son of Gov. and Mrs. Roosevelt, was born shortly before his grandmother arrived. He is an eight-pound boy, and both he and his mother are doing nicely, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Cold Wave Eludes City, Rain Due, Not Snow

With the threat of snow and severe cold passed, rising temperatures, and probable rain tomorrow were forecast today.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, explained that the near-blizzard which swept over the mid-west and advanced through Western Ohio, piling up snowdrifts and blocking traffic, had been shunted northward over the Great Lakes, permitting this region to escape the wintry blasts.

The lowest overnight temperature was 32. Tonight's minimum will be around 30, Brotzman predicted.

Associated Press.

A wintry blast that moved across the country from the West yesterday appeared to be spending itself in a final burst of fury at scattered points along the eastern seaboard and in the South.

While the Pacific Northwest was welcoming surcease from a stormy spell, New York, shrouded in a heavy fog, was awaiting a chilly onslaught.

The snow was melting on the prairies of Eastern Kansas today, while the District of Columbia was faced with a prediction of "much colder" tonight.

And away down South in Dixie New Orleans was anticipating freezing weather and Atlanta saw the mercury near 20 degrees above.

ROOSEVELT PLANS EXTRA SESSION TO LEGALIZE BEER

DOUBTS ACTION ON REVISION BY 'LAME DUCKS'

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—If the Volstead law is not modified at the forthcoming short session of Congress, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President-elect, will call the national lawmakers into special session shortly after his inauguration next March and recommend enactment of beer legislation, it was indicated today by his close associates.

The President-elect, it was learned from the same source, has abandoned hope that a modification measure will be enacted at the "lame duck" session.

FAVORS $8 TAX

Hints have been thrown out he will recommend a federal tax of $8 a barrel on beer. He is known to have been advised by Speaker John N. Garner, Vice President-elect, that such a tax would net the federal government upwards of $350,000,000 annually, which would be used to help balance the budget.

Privately, Gov Roosevelt is said to have expressed hope that when the Volstead law is modified 4 per cent beer can be provided.

Until the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed, however, it is said he does not feel there is much chance of legalizing wines because of their high alcoholic content.

RECOVERS FROM FLU

Completely recovered from the mild attack of influenza, Gov. Roosevelt today planned to leave his bedroom for the first time in a week. He said:

"I'm feeling fine, but I'm not going out of the mansion before Saturday."

People Want Brew Quickly, Davis Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The American people want beer legalized immediately and are not willing to wait until a special session of Congress is called by President Roosevelt, Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, said today upon his return to Washington from a week-end visit in New York. He declared:

"The forthcoming short session of Congress has received an unmistakable mandate from the electorate to legalize beer at the earliest possible moment."

With Senator Davis' demand for immediate modification, the state of Pennsylvania is a unit in its demand for beer insofar as its representatives in the upper chamber of Congress are concerned, for the senior Senator, David A. Reed, has already predicted that beer legislation would be passed during the December session of Congress.

FESS STAND SURPRISE

Announcement by Senator Simeon D. Fess (Rep.), of Ohio, that he will vote for resubmission of prohibition to the states came as a bombshell to the drys. Anti-prohibitionists received Fess' conversion with great enthusiasm.

His pronouncement that a resolution changing the Eighteenth Amendment would be adopted at the short session of Congress struck a blow at threats of a Senate filibuster.

The "beer for revenue" drive meanwhile took on more momentum with Senator Millard E. Tydings (Dem.) of Mryland, declaring there are 66 "sure" Senatorial votes for beer in the short session. Easy sailing for beer in the House was expected by House leaders.

'Allen Pays Farewell Visit to President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Former Senator Henry Allen, of Kansas, director of publicity for the Republican campaign committee, today paid a farewell visit to President Hoover before sailing tomorrow night for Europe on the Europa from New York. He will go to Bucharest, Rumania and plans to return in about a month.

Motorist Robbed By Man He Aided

When A. J. Seabol, 44, mine operator of Coulterville, alighted from his automobile on the Coulterville-Versailles road today to give his tire pump to another autoist, the latter pointed a revolver at him and took $90 and his gold watch, police were informed. The robber fled in his car, which bore an Ohio license.

It is planned that the two leaders will confer on debts, world armaments and economic affairs in the executive offices.

At the Capitol, meanwhile, the subject remained a more or less animated topic among the members of Congress who are returning rapidly. Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, told reporters he did "not see how any one could expect Congress to approve any further change in the present debt agreement." That position also was taken by two other House members, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, and Representative McReynolds (Dem.), of Tennessee, scheduled to be chairman of the foreign affairs committee.

Any moratorium proposal, Rainey said, would "have trouble getting a single vote from the present House." He added:

"I doubt whether it would even be brought before the House ways and means committee for consideration. That committee must approve any agreement involving debts."

McReynolds said he was opposed to any further reduction or to cancellation.

Pittsburgher Sought In Hit-Run Crash

McCONNELLSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Magistrate C. P. Elliott has issued a warrant for the arrest of Franklin P. Randall, of Pittsburgh. Randall's automobile is alleged to have injured five persons last Sunday in a crash with a car driven by Mrs. Augie V. Lesh, 52, of York.

Robbers Abandon Loot, Police Seek Owners

Wanted: Owners of four tires with rims and an auto jack; dropped by robbers and found by Etna police.

Police Chief S. J. Fry today said a search for the owners since last Friday had brought no results. The loot was dropped by two youths who escaped when a policeman sought to question them. Since no tires were reported missing in the borough, Fry believes they had been taken by the youths in some other community.

BEER OUTLOOK CHEERS LABOR

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 17.—(INS.)—The prospect of the return of legalized beer brought definite statements of employment optimism today from American Federation of Labor leaders holding meetings here in advance of the national convention next week.

Two plans for improving conditions were to be considered at meetings of the metal trades, building trades and label trades departments of the federation, and both are associated with beer.

W. J. Spencer, secretary of the building trades department, declared that renovation of the old breweries and the building of new ones "will put 3,000,000 men and women back to work if beer is returned."

STEAL ELECTION FRAUD PAPERS

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Striking again in their efforts to thwart an investigation into alleged election frauds in various city districts, thieves returned to the hall of records and ripped out the pages of two poll books which they had overlooked in their first visit, it was disclosed today.

The thefts provided the latest development in the city election scandal which broke yesterday when ballot boxes under police guard in city hall were rifled and 35 poll books were stolen from steel filing cabinets in the hall of records.

The latest coup occurred in the office of the county commissioner of registration during the hours when the office staff was absent.

Six States Granted $1,042,000 in Loans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Bringing relief to the impoverished of six states, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today authorized over $1,042,000 in loans, as follows:

Alabama, $123,774; Michigan, $225,000; North Dakota, $50,680; Virginia, $239,580; Washington, $190,000, and West Virginia, $213,891.

FRAUD CHARGED IN PROBE OF STATE VOTE

Roosevelt committee, testified he received many complaints involving illegal assistance to voters by city and county employes in the Twenty-sixth Ward, the home ward of William S. Vare, Philadelphia Republican organization leader.

AID TO VOTER

Tumililo said he saw a city employe take a woman by the arm, lead her into the voting booth and apparently give her assistance. He said:

"One of the Roosevelt watchers was given some kind of drink and the record was fixed up to make it appear the woman had asked for assistance."

Tumililo further testified that he knew of his own knowledge that "city and county employes accosted voters and actually handed them sample ballots in the voting places."

Three members of the committee, of which Representative Ragon is chairman, were ready to call for additional information from Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Asked to give a specific instance of irregularities, Tumililo named the Fifth Division of the Twenty-sixth Ward, wher he saw activities of city and county workers. He testified:

"These men and several others were drunk. The judge of election was drun kand lying around and the people were howling and yelling. The judge was sleeping; his head was resting on his arm."

Wilson told the committee that city and county officeholders had made it a practice of "running the election."

He pointed out that under the Philadelphia city charter, it is a violation of law for a city employe to take an active part in politics. Nelson queried:

"Haven't they don it for years?"

Wilson responded:

"That the reason we want to end it. It has been going on for years and the people art tired of it."

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Decision to conduct the investigation was reached by the committee in executive session in Washington yesterday after Wilson, of this city, chairman of the Roosevelt independent state committee, had said he had received more than 2,000 complaints arising from the November 8 balloting.

Wilson, who has been acting as counsel for a sub-committee of the investigating body, has been asked to assist in the inquiry.

Wilson said he had evidence of sufficient irregularities to reverse President Hoover's plurality over Gov. Roosevelt, and to give Lawrence H. Rupp, of Allentown (Dem.), a lead over Senator James J. Davis (Rep.) in the United States senatorial fight. Davis was re-elected on the face of official returns.

Benn's attorney charged further that any action of the State Banking Department in scanning the former commissioner's bank accounts was "unusual and wholly unwarranted procedure."

BOYD ON COMMITTEE

The committee today found the answer to its membership problem in Senator James S. Boyd, Montgomery, president pro tempore of the Senate.

The committee called on Boyd, ex-officio member of all Senate committees, to meet with the investigators and sign all subpenas.

This course was adopted because the senatorial terms of three members of the committee expire on December 1. They are Senators William S. Rial, chairman, Westmoreland; Charles H. Clippinger, Franklin, and William H. Earnest, Dauphin.

Should any question arise regarding Senator James J. Coyne, Allegheny, re-elected at the recent general election, he will take his oath of office at once for the new term which starts December 1.

With President Pro Tempore Boyd on the committee, the investigators' legal advisors decided, there will be a clear majority of continuing Senators and there will be no doubt regarding the committee's authority with Boyd's signature on official papers.

HOLDOVER MEMBERS

Three of the seven appointed members of the committee are holdover Senators: Samuel W. Salus, Philadelphia; William D. Pethick, Wayne, Republicans, and Warren R. Roberts, Northampton, a Democrat.

The committee today enlisted the aid of Charles Nodder, Federal Trade Commission investigator, in strengthening the Pennsylvania Public Service Company law.

Nodder, who has made extensive studies of the operations of holding companies, was asked to study the Pennsylvania statutes and report suggested improvements to the committee. The investigator told the committee he would be glad to do this.

Nodder, on leave of absence from Washington, was recalled to continue his testimony regarding the operations of the Associated Gas and Electric Company system in Pennsylvania.

night, was to be put through immediately. She said today:

"The state trooper, on guard downstairs with the secret service man, called me at 2:45 this morning. There was a train leaving at 3:18. I told him to get a car around to take me to the station, went in and told Franklin I was leaving, dressed and caught the train.

"I was downstairs, ready to leave, when I discovered I didn't have any money. I was afraid Franklin had gone back to sleep and didn't want to bother him, so I said to the trooper and the secret service man:

"Has either of you got $10?'

"They both went through their pockets. The secret service man gave me $10, and I caught the train.

"I got into New York at 6:30, and the doctor met me in the hall and said the baby was here. He's a beautiful little boy, and everything is all right."

BUTLER SCORNS CALL

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has had considerable experience at nursing, remained with her daughter-in-law, the former Betty Donner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Donner, of Villa Nova, Pa., while the nurse went out to breakfast. She will return to Albany tonight or tomorrow morning. She said:

"A funny thing happened. At 8 o'clock I called the mansion, reversing the charges, to tell Franklin the baby was here. The butler, unaware of the fact that I had left, thought someone was trying to put something over on him and refused to accept the call!"

Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt's father is W. H. Donner, formerly prominent in the steel industry of Western Pennsylvania, and founder of Monessen and Donora, the latter town being named after him. Mrs. Donner's first husband was the late Norwood Rodgers, of Bellevue.

LIBBY TRAPPED 'TWIXT LOVE OF STAGE, BABY

Sobs at Interview to Tune of Jazz and Gun Blasts

What does Libby Holman think? How does she feel about the manner in which the murder charge against her was dropped? Joseph Cowan tells in the following interview, the first she has given since the indictment was dropped.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Nov. 17.—Up the stairs came the rattle-bang-bang of a tin-pan piano, insisting that "Nothing Could Be Finer Than to Be in Carolina." Libby began to cry.

Everything had been all right until then. All right except for Libby Holman's nervousness. Once in a while she'd even been smiling a little.

But now she was crying. Not out loud, of course. Libby isn't the kind that cries out loud. Well, anyway, not since those days back yonder when she was packing them in on Broadway singing the blues with a sob in her throat.

Why don't those hotel people strangle that fellow at the piano? "Nothing Could Be Finer Than to Be in Carolina"—Libby never wants to see Carolina again.

'FORGET CAROLINA'

Libby wasn't looking well at all. You never saw a person more nervous in your life. As she sat there talking she couldn't keep her hands still.

"What's the matter, Libby? I thought I'd find you happy today."

She did her best to smile, but her brown eyes told you she didn't mean it. She said:

"I don't know. I suppose I ought to feel happy now. But I don't. It's been such a terrible thing. I couldn't sleep at all last night.

"It was all so unfair. That indictment. Those headlines in the newspapers. If I could only pick up a paper some time without seeing my name and my picture staring at me."

She took a puff at a cigaret, then laid it down and forgot about it.

"Are you going back on the stage ever, Libby? Broadway would certainly like to see you."

Maybe she didn't hear the question. She was looking out the window on the green waters of Chesapeake Bay.

HEARS GUNS BLAST

Lots of wild ducks out there. A hunter for every duck, too, judging by the shooting.

Yes, she had heard the question. She replied:

"I just don't know how to answer that. I love the stage. I guess I love it more than anything else I have now. More than anything else, except my baby."

Except her baby, of course. The baby that will arrive in February, eight months after its father's death.

Here she is a bride and a widow already. A honeymoon with a murder indictment for a wedding present. Well, at least, she's been exonerated before the year is up.

Is she going back to the stage? She tells you:

"I'd give anything to be able to. That all depends on the baby. The baby comes first, you know."

"What are you going to do until the baby arrives, Libby?"

She just sits there and looks at you. A double-barrelled discharge from a duck hunter's shotgun a boat length or two offshore startles her. Her hands shake like the wings of those panicky ducks out there on the bay.

Her mother answers the question. Mrs. Holman said:

Wellesley Police Girls Out for Bike Speeders

WELLESLEY, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Bicycle-riding Wellesley College girls who have the habit of seeing how close they can zoom past sedate professors without hitting them are going to have to put on the soft pedal.

Elinor Best, of Bronxville, N. Y., president of the college government association, has decided to "ground" the incurables just as fast as the Wellesley female bicycle police corps brings 'em in.

And if you don't think the 22 undergraduate bike cops aren't prepared to get their woman you've got another think coming.

There's a battery of single seaters that have been geared up for high speed purposes and there's a couple of tandems for use where the stunters and the speedsters hold the advantage.

Then, there's all kinds of shrubbery along the campus walks and the bushes make great hiding places for the gendarmerie.

Offenders will be brought before Chief Justice Frances Lee Maddox, of Devon, Pa., ranking officer of the college Superior Court. Chief Justice Maddox says she's going to be mighty stern with "repeaters"—just how stern she hasn't yet decided.

It Wasn't War, but How Could Lancaster Know?

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Quiet ruled Lancaster today after a night of thrills in which an order for a test mobilization of the 213th Coast Artillery threw the city into a state of almost war-time excitement.

Orders came from regimental headquarters at Allentown to "mobilize secretly the 213th Coast Artillery for test purposes." Similar orders had been issued for units in Allentown, Reading, Bethlehem, Easton and Lebanon.

But in Lancaster the order, police said, seems to have been misconstrued, and within a short time six officers and 94 men and E and F batteries were hastening to the Lancaster armory.

Wives, sisters, brothers and friends accompanied many of the soldiers and soon a large crowd had gathered. Rumors of riots and jobless marches and even of war ran through the crowd, and telephone calls flooded newspaper offices, police headquarters and the courthouse.

Then Maj. William J. Smith, of Reading, battery commandant, arrived to review the troops. He soon quieted fears with announcement it was merely a test. It was late at night, however, before word spread through the city.

WALES ELUDES GUARDS TO MINGLE WITH IRISH THRONGS

PRINCE JOINS CELEBRATION, BEATS DRUM

Cheered By Crowds as He Disregards Peril For Part in Fete

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—For half an hour or more last night the Prince of Wales, indulging a truly princely impulse, slipped through the elaborate guard provided for his protection against possible unpleasantness and mingled with a cheering, celebrating crowd in the streets of Hillsborough village.

The excursion became generally known only this morning after he had packed his golf clubs and set out, under heavy guard once more, for a game on the Newcastle course several miles from the city.

DISREGARDS SAFETY

With that stubborn disregard for his personal safety which characterized his service in the fighting areas during the World War, he went A. W. O. L. last night with his equerry and one detective. They slipped away from Hillsborough castle and went down to the village where a huge crowd was celebrating the dedication of the new Parliament buildings.

The white shirt fronts made them conspicuous and the prince was immediately recognized. Dozens of torchbearers pressed about him and there was a cannonade from the barbaric drums of goatskin which boom through such celebrations in Ireland.

CHEERED BY THRONGS

There was a tremendous cheer when the laughing prince seized a pair of drumsticks and, banging them against a nearby drum, contributed his bit to the terrific din.

He had exposed himself to the very dangers from which the police had gone to great lengths to protect him. The authorities had provided an unusually strong guard against the possibility of attack by radicals responsible for yesterday's demonstrations against his presence in Ireland.

After half an hour or so the prince started back to the castle, the crowd cheering him.

The house party which he had deserted was waiting at the gates, but before he went inside the prince was boosted to the top of the wall. The crowd was still. The prince said:

"My sister told me about these drummers over here, and warned me not to miss them."

The crowd shouted:

"Come back again!"

"Oh, I'm coming back."

Then he went inside and the castle gates were closed.

DELAY HEARING IN ELDER ROW

RENO, Nev., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Ruth Elder, aviatrix, divorced this week from Walter Camp, Jr., will not have to appear in police court today and perhaps not at all.

Police said she looked on while Attorney Kendrick Johnson and M. J. Holland fought after a Monday night party in an apartment house. Each received a black eye and Holland filed assaut and battery charges against Johnson District Attorney A. P. Johnson today said the hearing had been "indefinitely postponed."

Johnson was arrested after Holland complained the attorney struck him when he tried to stop Johnson from beating Miss Elder. Miss Elder denied she had been beaten.

The prosecutor said he doubted if Holland would press charges, particularly because two policemen who attended the party have announced they will testify Holland picked a fight and "got what he asked for."

Miss Elder and Johnson have appeared together in public frequently.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A demurrer to a $100,000 slander suit brought by Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy against her estranged husband, Guy Edward Hudson, was on file in behalf of Hudson in Superior Court today. The demurrer claimed Mrs. Hudson's complaint was ambiguous.

VETS OF B. E. F. DEFY EVICTION

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 17.—A score of Bonus Veterans in winter quarters at Camp Sherry, rendezvous for the remnants of the B. E. F. army, today defied Dr. C. H. Sherry, their host, to evict them.

Said one of the veterans:

"They'll have to put us out."

The veterans have taken the matter up with attorneys and may ask the court to prevent their eviction on five days' notice. Little attention was paid to the notice to vacate which expires on Sunday.

The veterans claim that the lease signed by Capt. Hoke Smith, which provided evacuation within 24 hours, was voided by Smith's sudden departure in the face of an information made by his wife in Georgia.

Dr. Sherry said the eviction would be effected on Monday.

ASSERTS YOUNG AVERTED CRASH

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Federal Court records today contained the story of how Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, joined with Owen D. Young, New York industrialist, to avert what might have been a national economic crisis.

The story was related by Edward E. Brown, vice president of the First National Bank, at a hearing to discover assets of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

Through the efforts of Traylor and Young, bankruptcy of the Insull holding companies was delayed until passage of the bill creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Brown said. This delay was effected through the "standstill agreement" on $51,000,000 worth of Insull bank loans, which kept the Insull concerns out of receivership from December until last April.

At the close of yesterday's session, the hearing to recover possible assets of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was indefinitely postponed pending the return to Chicago of Samuel Insull, Sr., who is at present a fugitive in Greece.

CORD TO FIGHT WALL STREET WITH PLANE

Plans Cross-U. S. Hop With Proxies To Defeat Cohu

By HARRY BERGMAN
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Aviation's modern Lochinvar out of the West, the dynamic Errett Lobban Cord, was ready today to launch another assault on Wall street's ancient citadel of finance. But, this youthful twentieth century gallant comes not astride a white steed. Instead, he chooses an airplane, driven by his own hand.

The 38-year-old automobile and airplane magnate, it was announced by Cord Corporation here, will take off from Los Angeles tonight on a dramatic aerial dash to New York to assume personal direction of his war of the proxies against the officers of the Aviation Corporation of America.

AIMS AT 'RESCUE'

In this re-enactment of the old tale, the modern Lochinvar seeks to "rescue" the stockholders of the $20,000,000 corporation, who, he declares, are in grim peril of losing a voice in the management of their company.

It was reported the Chicago capitalist will begin his transcontinental flight armed with proxies to be used as weapons in his battle against the proposed deal under which Aviation Corporation would exchange some of its common stock for assets of North American Aviation Corporation. Cord, according to reports, has been flying about from one western city to another, enlisting the proxies of large stockholders in the hope of preventing the merger.

WALL STREET AGASP

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Wall street, probably holding the balance of power in the bitter struggle for control of the Aviation Corporation, held its breath today as E. L. Cord, 38-year-old "boy dynamo" prepared to take off from the Pacific coast in his own plane to assume personal charge of the forces aligned against Lamotte T. Cohu, president of the company.

Simultaneously, an independent committee of stockholders, describing itself as "not partisan in the controversy," grouped itself behind former Gov. John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, in a bid for proxies.

Personal representatives here of Cord, outright owner of 30 per cent of the outstanding stock of Aviation Corporation, declared he "would fight to the last ditch" the implications contained in the letter written yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, stating the federated unions would "resent and resist to the utmost" any control of the corporation by Cord.

Green's letter was sent to Cohu and made public by him.

RICH N. Y. MAN SHOT HUNTING

Kountze was wounded by a discharge from a friend's gun as he and his companion were hunting near Rolling Rock Country Club near here. He was walking a few feet ahead of his friend when the latter fired at a rabbit.

Kountze, son of one of the founders of the Metropolitan Opera Company, shared with his sister, Mrs. Annie Minot, of Bernardsville, N. J., the bulk of their mother's $1,000,000 estate a year ago.

Park Beauty Put Ahead Of Shelter for Idle

Tool Shed Home of Jobless Men Razed As 'Eyesore'

Dame Fortune smiled upon a trio of unemployed, homeless men facing the prospect of being unsheltered from the rigors of winter. They found a haven. Then officialdom frowned, and their snug shelter was swept away.

It was a happy day for Roland Eagan, 50, a glass worker; Joe Ferrari, 45, a laborer, and Hugh McColligan, 50, a cement worker, when they found the tool shed at the Highland Park swimming pool unoccupied two weeks ago. Roland and Joe and Hugh had been living in cardboard box shelters under the Stanton drive bridge, and as nights grew cold, they had difficulty keeping warm.

The trio moved into the tool house, all snug and warm with tar papered walls and roof. It was just the place for three sober, orderly men, willing to work, but unable to find jobs. The police and attendants thereabouts agreed. So Roland and Joe and Hugh settled down, comfortable, to face winter with no qualms for its rigors.

Then park officials decided the swimming pool vicinity needed beautifying. Orders came that the tool shed must go to make ready for landscaping.

The shed came down today. Only a pile of boards was left when the wreckers finished. Roland and Joe and Hugh again face the prospect of a shelterless winter.

James Moore, superintendent of parks, said he didn't intentionally deprive the men of their dwelling; he only wanted the park beautified. Public Works Director Edward G. Lang said this morning he called Moore to countermand the order, but that it was too late. He, too, said he didn't want the men ousted.

The lumber of the shed will be used in building boardwalks and making repairs in the park, Lang said.

MOTHERS PERIL CRASH DRIVERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A police emergency squad was called out in Brooklyn today to rescue two automobile drivers from a group of angry mothers after four school girls had been injured as result of a collision.

Cars driven by Eugene Murphy and Werner Howald collided in front of public school No. 32, as crowds of children were entering the building.

Murphy lost control of his car and it struck Jennie De Prina, 15, who was crossing the street, jumped the curb and knocked down Josephine La Forte, 13; Rose Dauria, 14, and Mary Nasco, 13.

As ambulances arrived, scores of mothers living in the neighborhood surrounded the cars and threatened the drivers. Police finally drove the angry women back and escorted Murphy and Howald to safety.

FATHER SEEKING TO REGAIN CHILD

Joseph Gillespie, 2128 Forbes street, who was recently directed to pay Mrs. Josephine Gillespie, of Province street, $100 a month alimony, pending outcome of her divorce suit, has obtained a writ of habeas corpus, for possession of their daughter, Dorothy, 10. The writ is returnable November 28.

The couple separated in September, when it is alleged by Mrs. Gillespie that she was forced to leave her husband and go to the home of her mother.

The statements were made in a bill of particulars filed by Mrs. Gillespie when she asked for alimony. Mrs. Gillespie claims that her husband has failed to support her. She alleged cruel and barbarous treatment as grounds for divorce.

CAPITAL WORKS ON BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Faced by need for extraordinary efforts to balance the budget, executive, legislative and administrative branches of the government each in its way today was busy devising avenues of aid.

President Hoover, already engrossed in the war debt issue that soon must be faced, had an appointment in the afternoon with J. Clawson Roop, the director of the budget, whose office has been studying the situation for months.

At the Treasury, where Secretary Mills has gathered the latest information available to help the President with his annual message to Congress, figures today showed the deficit as of November 15 had passed $709,000,000.

Since July 1 expenditures have approached $1,342,000,000.

At the Capitol, the House Appropriations Committee got to work on the first of the annual money bills to keep the government running. All of these have to be debated in the short session impending.

16 'KLANSMEN' HELD FOR RAID ON 'REDS'

Three Badly Beaten; Two Former Co-eds Among Victims

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Sixteen men were arrested by the police riot squad early today after they had forced their way into an alleged meeting of Communists and severely beaten three of them.

With handbills bearing the announcement, "the Ku Klux Klan rides again," the 16 men planted a fiery cross on the lawn of the home of Dave Miller, rushed into the house, cowed its occupants with drawn revolvers, beat them with clubs and sections of rubber hose and attempted to kidnap them, police reported.

PLACE SURROUNDED

Three of the Communists required hospital attention. Others were less severely beaten. Miller was treated for scalp lacerations; his son, Sam, for a broken shoulder, and Carl Kirchner, of San Pedro, for severe cuts and bruises.

HOLD EX-CO-EDS

Included in the Communist group and said to have been roughly handled by the raiders were two young women, both former students of the University of California. They are Miss Novena Goodwin and Mildred Watson. Police said both have been involved in various radical disturbances.

When police arrived the fiery cross was still burning. The officers said they found Kirchner trussed with ropes and thrown into one of the raiders' cars.

RECLUSE DEATH LAID TO PAIR

NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A Negro woman and a Negro man stood indicted today for slaying of Miss Jane Surget Merrill, wealthy recluse, last August 4.

The grand jury returned a true bill yesterday against Lawrence Pinkney Williams, alias George Pearles, who was slain when he resisted arrest at Pine Bluff, Ark., shortly after Miss Merrill was killed at her plantation home. The jury indicted Emily Burns, a Negro woman, as an accessory and for aiding a murderer to escape.

No action was taken against R. H. Dana, the "wild man" of "Goat Castle," and his guardian, Miss Octavia Dockery, who are under charges of murder in connection with the slaying. Dana and Miss Dockery were released from jail when officers reported their investigation showed Pearles was the actual slayer of Miss Merrill.

Society Rides in Taxis, Own Drivers Hold Ball

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Chicago society either stayed at home last night or went out in taxis.

It was the chauffeur's night out. Not only the chauffeur's, but in most cases, also the maid's.

It was the night of the twenty-fourth annual ball of the Chicago Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent Association—a ball given in one of the city's largest dance halls to the tunes of a couple of the city's best orchestras.

The master's valet was busy grooming, not the master, but, of all persons, the chauffeur for most of the day, and when James appeared on the dance floor there was little, if any, difference in appearance between the chauffeur and the master from a style standpoint.

And the ladies who attended appeared little different in attire from a debutante of the 400. Many of the girls at the ball were maids, given the night out along with the chauffeur.

There is tradition galore back of the chauffeur's ball and it really is a society function here. It originated away back in 1908 as a coachmen's ball. Motor cars were something to be stared at in those days and the chauffeur for Mrs. Potter Palmer, who tried to crash the party, was ejected forthwith.

Most of the 2,500 chauffeurs, their wives, and their girl friends, rode to the dance in state in the masters' automobiles. A few were even more in the guise of the elite—their masters, true to tradition, entered into the spirit of the thing and drove them to the ballroom.

LET DEFORMED BABIES PERISH, SAYS DOCTOR

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—In an address described as "A message to doctors and not to the public," Dr. W. A. Guild, of Chicago, called attention to the ancient Spartan practice of permitting deformed infants to die and made this statement before the convention of the Eastern and Southern Homeopathic Medical Associations:

"We cannot take life (except by way of punishment for crime) no matter how useless or pitiful its existence may be, nor however great the social and economic burden the total congenital defectives may be.

"Yet may there not be cases when the officiating obstetrician may legally and honorably and with sincere humanity turn his back and minimize his efforts to bring life into such misshapened products of twisted human formation?

"This is, indeed, one of the many difficult obstetrical problems which the individual physician must solve for himself alone. His conscience must be his guide. Perhaps he will be influenced by considering what he would want done if the mother were his wife and the child his offspring."

Dr. Guild prefaced these remarks by giving his personal experience in his early medical practice. He told of the death of one infant, and added:

"In trying to comfort the mother by telling her how much of earthly trouble her infant had escaped, I found myself picturing how much the little mother was being saved by the non-existence of her monster offspring."

'CAT' TRAINER FINDS TIGER FEARS LION

That's what Clyde Beatty, credited with being the only animal trainer to have succeeded in working with the two species in one cage, had to say on the often discussed subject of which animal is the more fearless.

Beatty bases his observation on 11 years of wild animal training for circus and screen during which this slender 27-year-old former Bainbridge (O.) youth has made more than 25 visits to hospitals to have portions of his anatomy repaired.

Beatty explained that lions and tigers have a different code of battle. He said:

"A lion has some sense of brotherhood. He will pitch in and help a fellow lion out of a fight. But not so the tiger. He will slink away or coolly watch his kinsman get chewed up. His idea, apparently, is every tiger for himself.

"And so when an argument breaks out between a tiger and a lion in a cage of mixed animals, the latter knows he can count on help, but the tiger has to fight his own battle."

WIDOW IN BALM CASE SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Death by her own hand today ended the long drawn-out breach of promise suit which Mrs. Lillian Bauer, widow of a Chicago man, brought against Dr. Fred E. Smith, prominent Fifth avenue dentist, in 1926.

A milkman, smelling gas, broke down the door of the woman's apartment and found her body slumped over an open gas jet with a pillow under her head.

Two notes found in the woman's Bible spoke of "someone haunting her."

In her suit against Smith, who is now in Europe, Mrs. Bauer charged a 19-year association with the dentist and of his promise to marry her when a wealthy aunt died.

HAMMER DEATH CONFESSED

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—District Attorney Robert Fortney announced today that Mrs. Mary Stancavage has confessed that she killed her husband, Jacob, 70, with a hammer, in their home Monday night.

Fortney said the woman also implicated her step-son, Klem Kieselefski, a cripple. Both are charged with the slaying.

A statement issued by the district attorney's office said she admitted striking the aged man twice with a hammer and that her stepson struck him once.

College Amazons, Giant Students Seen by 1982

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—(INS.)—If the present trend continues, Harvard undergraduates in 1982 will average more than six feet tall and weigh more than 190 pounds. And the girls at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith and Mount Holyoke colleges within half a century will become Amazons.

These were the conclusions which had been arrived at today by Gordon T. Bowles, research student in anthropology at Harvard, who studied the comparative physical measurements of more than 18,000 fathers and sons of Harvard, and 1,071 mothers and daughters at the four women's colleges.

JAIL DORMONT SALESMAN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Speedy justice was meted out to Gilbert C. Smythe, a salesman, of Dormont, Pa., by Judge Davis, in Quarter Sessions Court, who gave him a sentence yesterday of 2½ to 5 years in Eastern Penitentiary for passing forged checks.

Smythe passed a bogus check on the Hotel McAlpin here for $121, and then went to Baltimore, where he passed one on the Biltmore Hotel, police say.

Police traced Smythe to Washington, where he was arrested in the act of attempting a pass a check on the Ambassador Hotel, it is alleged.

Testimony was given in court by Detective Clay and S. H. Miller, of the Fort Pitt Chemical Company, Pittsburgh, which employed Smythe and on whom the checks were forged.

Smythe formerly lived on Broadway, Dormont, according to local records.

NETTIE GORDON SUITS SETTLED

Two $75,000 damage suits against Nettie Gordon, of the Ramey Apartments, 12 East North avenue, and Dick K. Clowes, of the Perfect Extermination Company, in Federal Court, today were marked "settled and discontinued."

The suits grew out of the fumigation of the apartment house which cost two lives and, it was alleged, affected three persons.

The suits were brought by Carolyn Mohney Lust, of Henryetta, Okla., and Florence Mohney Sinn, of Detroit, Mich. Both were overcome by fumes, it was claimed. Attorneys C. J. Margiotti and R. M. McWade represented the two women in the suits, but the nature of the settlement was not revealed.

1,000 PICKETS SURROUND MINE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—One thousand pickets today successfully blocked attempts of the Peabody Coal Company to open the Cora mine near here, mocked highway police when they threw tear gas bombs at them, and severely beat two miners who attempted to pass their lines.

William Becraft, 31, and his stepfather, Hector Collard, 48, both United Mine Workers employed by the Peabody company, were pulled from their automobile and slugged.

Fifteen deputies from the sheriff's office and 25 state highway police stood by, but were apparently powerless in the face of the huge gathering.

ALESSIO AIDED IN DEATH TRIAL

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17.—William Goff, a legless Negro, a witness to the murder of Ralph Masco, in his Monessen home, today testified that Tony Alessio, Monessen politician, was not the man who fired the fatal shots. He said a man taller and heavier than Alessio fled in an automobile after the murder.

Mrs. Josephine Gargan, of Dunlevy, testified that Mrs. Masco, at the funeral, had told her she didn't believe Alessio was the murderer. Addio Fiordiglo, a boarder in the Masco home, also testified that Mrs. Masco had admitted she did not know who killed her husband. On the stand Mrs. Masco had identified Alessio as the gunman. Alessio, once convicted of the murder, has 20 more witnesses to call in his defense.

TWO ON STAND DENY ARSON

Jacob Greenfield and John Pane, on trial charged with arson, testified in their own defense today and denied knowledge of a fire that destroyed an apartment building at 908-912 White street, McKeesport, April 12, routing 22 persons.

The case was expected to go to the jury late today. Firemen yesterday testified to finding in the ruins several barrels that had contained gasoline. Commonwealth witnesses testified Greenfield, renting agent, gave Pane a bogus lease two days before the fire.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—The freighters Makalla, Cunard Line, and the Alamar, Calmar Line, limped into port today following a head-on collision during a heavy fog today in Delaware Bay several miles below New Castle, Del. Both vessels were badly damaged, and one man was injured seriously. He is John Sanendski, Alamar ship carpenter, who was brought to a local hospital.

GIVES UP HOME TO AID MATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. — (Universal Service.) — Mrs. Daniel O'Connell, a weeping, gray-haired woman, today had voluntarily surrendered her $85,000 mansion and rich tapestries, paintings and rugs worth $200,000 to expiate the crime of her husband.

O'Connell, former head of the Fifth avenue investment firm of Daniel O'Connell, Inc., which failed for $2,000,000, is to be sentenced Friday after pleading guilty to grand larceny.

The fatherly-looking investment banker's only assets are the home and the art collection, owned jointly by him and his wife. Mrs. O'Connell, facing the future penniless, was under no compunction to surrender her share, but did so of her own volition.

She and her husband affixed their signatures to the deeds in General Sessions, and then O'Connell was led back to his cell in the Tombs.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Louise Bernhardt, contralto heard with Cesare Sodero's orchestra over NBC-KDKA tonight at 7:30, is one of the newest members of the network's artists' staff . . . Prior to entering radio, she was featured extensively in concert and opera . . . Don Bestor and Art Jarrett have been indulging in a checker feud between broadcasting sessions. Don's ahead, so far . . . Mrs. Ernest Hutcheson, acting as critic for her pianist husband, listens-in from the control room during all of his studio rehearsals.

Miss Bernhardt

Having written himself out of the script last week, the loquacious Jack Benny listened to Mary Livingston as she played the leading role Sunday night, became all worried and immediately telephoned his sponsor to ask if he was still on the program.

You'll hear the roar of Niagara Falls over WJAS Saturday night, November 26, at 9:30 . . . Two protected microphones and a specially licensed short-wave transmitter will be required for the broadcast.

Lawrence Tibbett and Richard Crooks are listed to return to the air early in December on that tire program . . . Crooks will inaugurate the new series December 5, with Tibbett's first appearance scheduled on December 12 . . . The two will alternate.

Most recent statistics show that the average number of hours devoted to classical music on the networks totals 54 weekly—40 on NBC and 14 on CBS.

More statistics: In a recent autograph contest, the signatures of Calvin Coolidge and Rudy Vallee outnumbered all others in 150,000 albums submitted.

Ask Edith Meiser, author of the radio adaptations of the Sherlock Holmes stories, how long it takes to write an average length radio script . . . and she'll tell you:

"Two days in bed!"

The young writer, who formerly was a stage star, actually writes most of the scripts before she rises—but not until after a good cup of coffee. She has breakfast in bed—at about 11 a. m.—and then writes continually, in long hand and using a blunt pencil, until 6 p. m. After two days' work—14 hours—another Sherlock Holmes story is ready for rehearsal. Miss Meiser's only companion during her long and concentrated writing sessions is her Scottish terrier, "Dr. Watson."

Clarence (Ray Perkins piano) is getting a new keyboard—so the NBC humorist quips: "The old one had a run in it." . . .

Hyacinth and Gray

$16.75

To us, colors have a meaning, they are a medium for expressing definite things. So for these two hazy colors, which suggest serenity and softness, we have chosen the types of dresses which make them most effective. The dress with suede lace top and sleeves is of one of the heavy winter sheers; and the other model is of finely crinkled, dull crepe, with applique of self fabric on fine net. Sizes 36 to 44.

These two models offer choice of three shades of hyacinth and two shades of gray; and the first dress can also be had in black with the lace top and sleeves in gray.

LAWRENCE SEES DEMOCRATS IN LEAD HERE

Speaking at a meeting of the Women's Democratic Club in the William Penn Hotel yesterday, David L. Lawrence, Democratic County chairman, declared that today the Democratic party is the majority party in Allegheny County. He said the election November 8 will go down in history as a red letter day "when the people decided that they would not be fooled any longer by Republican platitudes, promises or threats." He continued:

"The people of this community are in arms against the extravagance and inefficiency of our local and state governments. They demand the repeal of the blue laws that have been kept on the statute books of Pennsylvania for over 150 years, during nearly all of which time the Republican party has been in control of every branch of the state government.

"The 'forgotten' men and women in Pennsylvania want the same privileges Sunday as have been enjoyed by those who are able to belong to exclusive clubs.

"The Democracy of this state will assume its full share of the responsibility of bringing about the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Democratic members of the Legislature will vote for the necessary resolution and legislation to expedite the removal of the Eighteenth Amendment from the Constitution. They will vote to repeal the Snyder-Armstrong state enforcement act.

"We made a splendid gain in our Democratic represeniation at Harrisburg, but it is not enough. We must press our advantage until the forces that have stood for the preservation of the blue laws, the protection of the public utility racketeers, and the placing of our police powers in the hands of industrial corporations are swept from power.

"Next year, in the City of Pittsburgh, we will have an excellent opportunity of putting a Democrat into the office of Mayor with a Democratic majority in Council. And if we set about now to consolidate gains and maintain our advantage, nothing can prevent us from repeating next November the victory of this November."

Sentences Band To Play at Ball

EL CAMPO, Tex., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Mayor A. L. Lincecum, of El Campo, solved the question of music for a charity ball. A dance orchestra was haled into court for traffic violation. Hizzoner found all guilty and sentenced them to three hours hard labor. They are to be dressed as convicts and the chief of police has been instructed to see that a guard is placed over them.

M'KEE'S ATTACK ON TAMMANY ROUSES N.Y.

Spurs Economy Drive Of City 'Sick and Tired' Of Machine Rule

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—In a fighting mood, Mayor Joseph V. McKee last night tossed a bombshell into the municipal political situation by unloosing a thinly veiled attack on Tammany Hall.

In an impromptu address before 400 members of the State Chamber of Commerce in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, he said "there can be no turning back" from the crusade against "waste and extravagance," which was started when more than 135,000 voters wrote in his name on the ballots on November 8.

Disclaiming all personal political ambition, McKee asserted that the leadership of this crusade is of minor importance compared with the fact that the citizens of New York have become aroused to battle because they are "sick and tired" of conditions as they exist and will not allow them to continue.

Appealing to the city's business groups to consolidate and organize for a new deal in city management, the Mayor asserted:

"Something has happened to the conscience of the people of New York. When those pencils were used on election day it meant a good deal more than proof that there are 78 variations of the name 'McKee.'

"It was something far more fundamental than that. Neither was its significance in the fact that a political machine tried to stop the process. What the people said by this means of protest was that they are sick and tired of conditions in one of the greatest cities of the world."

Depression Hits Dogs, They Bite More People

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Dogs also feel the pinch of the depression and are biting people here more than usual, according to Dr. Fred Reinhard, director of the bureau of communicable diseases.

Dog bites recorded in the past three years are: 586 in 1930; 1,104 in 1931, and 1,145 so far this year.

Curtailed food supplies for many families results in insufficient feeding and undernourishment of dogs and develops bad tempers, Dr. Reinhard reported.

Denied Children, She Wins Divorce

RENO, Nev., Nov. 17.—(INS.)—Emma Smith Strong, attractive brunette, obtained a divorce yesterday from Philip Grandin Strong, New York social registerite, in an open court hearing.

Mrs. Strong testified that her husband's attitude toward her had been one of indifference and that he had been "undemonstrative and at times morbid." She said that although she had desired to have children, he had refused and finally had left her to come west, despite her pleas to the contrary.

CHORUS GIRLS' SHORTS LONGER

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The chorus girls' shorts are going to be longer this month.

There are two reason for this, said N. Fred Essig, of Chicago, newly-elected president of the National Costumers' Association, convening today.

One reason is the recent trend of longer skirts, and the other reason he attributes to the depression. He said:

"Hard times have forced the shows out on the road, and folks in smaller towns aren't trained to the nudity in vogue in the large cities and are protesting."

Transpacific Plane Stolen in Mexico

NOGALES, Sonora, Mex., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The airplane which Don Moyle flew across the Pacific Ocean last year from Japan to the United States was stolen from the airport here. A search was started in the United States and in Mexico.

Moyle said the plane cost $22,500. He is engaged in commercial flying between Nogales and Hermosillo, Sonora.

Fight colds this year at one-third the ordinary cost

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

THE children—the whole family—can escape more colds this year. Can get quicker relief from those they catch. And you can save $2 out of every $3 by using Pepsodent Antiseptic. The money you save results from Pepsodent's remarkably high germ-killing power.

Here's the difference!

It's a simple problem of arithmetic. Pepsodent is three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics—by adding water it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds and unpleasant breath.

The old-fashioned mouth washes must be used full strength to be effective. So Pepsodent Antiseptic was made powerful enough to be diluted and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds—yet it is completely safe when used full strength.

Don't risk health

It's costly enough to use a mouth wash that should be used full strength. But it's more costly to dilute that mouth wash and not kill the germs. That's why we warn you to choose an antiseptic that, even when diluted, kills germs. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe. Safeguard health and save money.

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

TOY EXHIBIT OPENS MONDAY

Believing that children's toys are not merely something to be looked at on Christmas morn and then relegated to the "bone yard," the Pittsburgh Council of Parent Education, in co-operation with Kaufmann's, will sponsor a three-day children's exhibit and lecture program at Kaufmann's next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The purpose is to educate parents, teachers and others interested in children in the proper toys, books and clothes for children. For example, a round ball is not just a ball, but is a means of aiding a child from one month to a year old to develop its sense of squares and spheres.

Lecturers will include Miss Ella Ruth Boyce, director of kindergartens, Pittsburgh public schools; Martin P. Chworowsky, principal, Falk Elementary School; Miss Mary E. Foster, head of the schools department, Carnegie Library; Miss Irene McDermott, director of home economics, Pittsburgh public schools; Miss Betty Gilman, Frick nursery school; Miss Marian Van Campen, Pennsylvania State College, and Miss Alice Parker, Mrs. Saul Lavine, chairman of the council, will preside.

CIPHER ED. BLUSHES

Cipher No. 11
How True!
RYRYZ EMOPC DELKN DGPOV TABBJ QREAB ZLAAM

However, It Isn't Modesty That Afflicts Him

And few lulls.

In fact, when not preparing new ciphers with the hope of stumping the experts and near-experts, the Cipher Editor tries to figure out the many messages sent to him by readers. Some are nice, but others, when deciphered, bring a bit of a blush to the Ed's face—and not from modesty, either.

However, the girls and boys who tear their hair over the messages and, when finally retire late at night, dream of dancing letters, crazy "zzizzes" of "xxyqfls," can hardly be blamed. However, it does keep your mind from OTHER worries—and that's something.

Now, how about No. 11? How many have deciphered it within "bogie"? Let's hear about it—and no "fish" stories. Another cipher tomorrow and a solution to this one.

P. S.—More than one alphabet is used in No. 11.

LAMONT FLAYS HIGH TARIFF

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Universal.)—High tariff barriers and the growth of "intense nationalism" throughout the world stand in the way of a restoration of prosperity, in the opinion of Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Addressing more than 600 leading educators and economists gathered for the three-day university conference, last night, Lamont said:

"The American formula for prosperity has been a simple one. The more money we lend foreigners, the more of our goods they buy, the more we manufacture, the higher prices and wages go, and everybody has a job—if the formula is effective.

"But tariff barriers prevent the exchange of goods. Almost every separate people has sought to dig itself within its own cyclone cellar. The results have been obviously alarming."

BEER SUPPLY READY HERE

With 12,000 barrels of beer ready for release when Congress gives the word, stockholders of the Fort Pitt Brewing Company today were hopeful for improved business in their industry.

No additional investment for plant equipment will be needed to enter the beer trade, stockholders were informed yesterday at the annual meeting of the corporation.

Application had been made to the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange to list 500,000 shares of $1 par value common stock.

Officers were re-elected as follows: President, Samuel J. Grenet; vice president and treasurer, Henry A. Dapper; secretary, Milton S. Englert, and directors, Albert Breitweiser, John A. Fugassi, William Kopp and Stanley J. Kam.

Some Men Have Wrong Idea Of Real Friendship

Why can't boys and girls be just friends?

Or can they?

Bill wants to know. According to him, every li'l' queen he admires immediately tries to make him sign on the dotted line, and he simply can't find one who's willing to be a pal and nothing more.

Also, according to him, marriage is the bunk. So what's a man to do?

"Dear Sally:

I am a constant reader of your column. I have often intended to write to you, but have never seemed to get around to it until now.

"In my opinion, you are really a smart woman, and have had lots of experience in life, because you so often hit the nail on the head.

MANY GIRL FRIENDS

"Now I am a young man of 21, but I look and pass for much more, as I have always associated with people much older than I. I consider myself fairly well educated, but am dumb on one subject, and this is it:

"Why is it that a fellow can't carry on a successful platonic friendship with a girl. It seems to me that every girl has but one thing in her head, and that is to get married, and the sooner the better.

"I have had many girl friends, but they only lasted until they found out that I was not on the market. Then they changed boy friends, and changed again, till some fool made a bigger fool of himself than I was willing to.

"I'm convinced that our modern femmes are 'out after a man,' and nothing else will satisfy them. And here is where you get yours.

"In all your advice you discourage friendships that will never turn into marriage. And you know that about two out of every three marriages would be better off if left in the friendship stage. Divorce records prove this.

DOES NOT APPROVE

"It may be your 'woman's intuition' that makes you give this advice, but I think you should cut it out. You know there is one born every minute, so why make more? I could rattle you off a long list of my friends who have made a flop at marriage—a list that would look like a poll on the prohibition question.

"When it is all summed up, it amounts to just this—that when the preacher lines you up and says 'do you,' and the rest of it, love takes wings and flies out at the nearest exit. So once again, I say 'cut it out.'

"My older relatives say I am not dry behind the ears. Maybe so, but I don't believe it. I feel that anyone my age should have a lot of ideas in his head that are crazy, in your estimation.

"BILL."

Well, son, it's certainly fierce, the way the girls pursue you, you have my heartfelt sympathy. Probably you'll just have to buy a club to keep 'em off. Or hire a bodyguard. Anyone with your overwhelming charm, which you so coyly admit, simply isn't safe without protection.

But kidding aside, I wonder if you've ever actually tried to be friends with any girl. Probably not. Your kind doesn't. You want to go around pulling a heavy romantic line, monopolizing a girl's time and kisses, and yet retaining your carefree bachelor estate. Then you feel highly indignant if the girl, mistaking you for an honest man, takes you seriously.

NOT REAL FRIENDSHIPS

Why do I advise girls to avoid friendships such as that? That's why. Because the average male who specializes in "platonic friendship" is a selfish, sensual cheat, and nothing else but.

As a matter of fact, I have never discouraged real friendship between men and women, and I have most emphatically sat upon the silly young things who see a wedding ring in every chocolate soda.

But isn't it true that most girls are "out to get their man?" They certainly are—if he seems to be the right man. Why? Because God made them that way, son. Men and women were created with the urge to love and marry and build up a new generation. If you haven't that urge yet, it's because your relatives are right and you're not grown up yet, even though you think you are.

And as for marriage being haywire — hooey!!! It's not marriage that's haywire! It's the people in it. Marriage, like any other job, takes generosity and judgment and tolerance and humor and sympathy and good sportsmanship. If it has these, love won't fly away.

Reconstructing Past Usually Futile, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

One "rival" you should never worry the least bit about is the sweetheart, wife or husband that has long gone out of the life of the one you love.

No one is so far removed as that one with whom you are completely finished.

You may not exactly hate each other, and even speak kindly of one another, but the pleasant memories are of the past and have nothing to do with the present or future.

When two persons go their separate ways they might become interested with anyone else, but not with each other again.

The few who have tried to reconstruct the past have usually failed.

When friendship or marriage comes to the real parting of the ways, it is over and done with forever.

Madge Faces Ordeal of Telling Secret

I had been prepared for Lillian's dictum that Dicky and Harry must know of the conversation between Sam Brixton and Charles Owen which Lee Chow had overheard, and a transcript of which he had sent to me through Hugh Grantland, under a pledge of secrecy. But with every frayed fiber of my nerves I dreaded what Dicky's reaction would be to the knowledge that Hugh Grantland had shared this secret with me.

"I will tell Dicky myself," I said resolutely. "But I would like you to tell Harry about it."

She hesitated, looking at me curiously.

"It can wait a little while," she said. "Of course they must know before the Brixtons come, for I want Harry and Dicky to observe Sam very carefully. They will be able to tell whether he is acting a part or not. But Helena and Sam cannot get here for another two hours. I am sure of it. And nothing else can be done before morning, so if you want to wait a little while ——"

"No, I'd rather get it over with," I said, feeling as if I had been ordered to the guillotine. "If you and Mary will go back into the living room and ask Dick to come here—"

"I'll send him right in," she said gravely, and then they went out. It was less than five minutes before Dicky knocked lightly upon the door.

HURRIES EXPLANATION

"What's up?" he asked gravely, when he had closed the door behind him. There was no tenderness in his eyes. I remembered dully that there had been none there since the day of our departure from the farm for the city, when Lee Chow had brought me the letter from Hugh.

I knew enough of my Peter Pan's temperament to realize that while he might be justly angry at me for keeping secret what I had learned, and while he might resent my association with Hugh in his espionage on Brixton and Owen, yet the keen edge of his anger would be dulled by the discovery that Hugh's letter to me concerned only the thing he had set himself to do for the protection of Marion's property—the strong box containing her "fortune," against which I had thought Brixton and Owen were plotting.

"Please sit down," I said. "I have a confession to make to you about this affair. I have just told Lillian, for it concerns her most. I—I—hope that you will be as generous as she has been."

I recited the story I had just told Lillian, giving him the letter Lee Chow had sent to me, and reciting from memory the one Hugh had sent me through Lee Chow from Philadelphia.

SURPRISES MADGE

I heard a hastily smothered oath when I had finished the recital of that letter, and I rushed through the rest of my story.

When he spoke at last I had one of the hardest tasks of my life to keep from bursting into nervous sobbing, for there was no anger in his voice.

"There's no doubt in the world," he said, "that you ought to be put on bread and water in solitary for a year. But perhaps this will be a lesson to you to realize that you can't engage in secret and entangling alliances'—isn't that the phrase? —without the knowledge of the people entitled to the knowledge you have gained, even if it does affect the so-called honor of a sapient Chink. But, as far as I can see, there's no real harm done, as long as Fa—" he caught himself with the hateful epithet, "Faithful Fido," on his lips—"as long as Hugh is on the job, as he seems to be. Where is his letter, by the way? You gave me Lee Chow's, but I'd like to look over his."

"I haven't it," I said, miserably. "I tore it up."

Gifts for Attendant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me a few suggestions as to gifts for bridesmaids and ushers?

C.

The most popular gift for the bride to give her attendants is, these days and for some time past, a vanity case. They are so especially lovely things, and they can be obtained in such varieties of kinds and costs, that they seem especially appropriate. Bracelets too, are popular for these gifts. And pins, brooches, bar pins, clips. And necklaces, evening bags, fitted traveling cases, traveling clock, wrist watches, gold key chains, rings.

The groom may give his ushers wrist watches, key chains, cigaret cases, wallets, evening sets, a set of pen and pencil, cigaret lighter.

Introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Joan and I had a disagreement in school the other day and we have decided to write to you for your service. This is our problem.

Joan said that one always introduces a young girl to a young man. I think one should introduce a young man to a young lady. If the latter is done, one would mention the girl's name first.

In introducing a "Mr. Jones to a "Miss Elliott," one would say, "Miss Elliott, may I present Mr. Jones?"

Am I right or is Joan?

M.

You are right. A man is introduced to a woman even if the man is a very old gentleman and the girl is a very young girl. And the form of introduced is correct, "Miss Elliott, may I present Mr. James."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

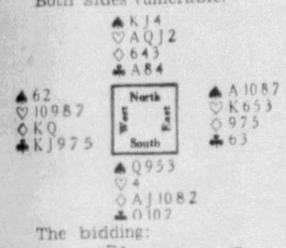
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Down 700!

The Vanderbilt Cup match, the annual struggle for possession of the trophy given by Mr. Harold S. Vanderbilt as an evidence of team-of-four supremacy at Contract Bridge, is rightly regarded by Contract players as one of the most serious Bridge events of the year. In preparation for it, many of the stronger teams held a series of practice matches to learn in advance, if possible, the weak points in their bidding or playing armors, so that they might be remedied before the play of the actual contest began.

One of the hands, in which the North player of the two contending teams found a way to lose the maximum number of points possible, was the following:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding is in accord with generally recognized practices, as the North and South hands appear to have sufficient strength to justify a game bid in notrump.

The Opening lead in each instance was the spade 7, and a low spade was played from Dummy and won by North with the King. The slightest study of the hand revealed that the hope of producing sufficient tricks to make game rested on the diamond suit, so a finesse in diamonds was taken at once. West won and returned a heart, and here both North players elected to finesse. The finesse losing, the East players then made the dangerous shift to the club suit, which, as a matter of fact, would not have been a bad Opening lead—in fact, probably the best Opening lead for East to make. The Ten of clubs was played from Dummy in the hope of forcing the King from West, but when the Knave was played, North did not hold up, as he should have done, but played the Ace. Banking his hopes of success entirely upon the diamond finesse, North now led a diamond, finessed again, and West was in. West returned a low spade, which East won with the Ace and returned a club. The result was that East and West took 4 club tricks, 2 diamond tricks, 1 heart and 1 spade, and North was down 700 points.

There are many interesting questions of play in the hand As I have said, I think the correct Opening lead is probably the club 6, in which case North has no chance whatever of making the hand. But against the lead actually chosen, North, as the cards lie, does have several opportunities to make the hand, and some of these, at least, he should embrace. On the heart return, after the first diamond finesse is taken, North, realizing the danger of a switch to clubs, should probably win with the Ace and then try the diamond finesse again. However, there is something to be said for the play of the Knave of hearts, permitting East to win a trick with his King. The shift will then be taken to clubs, no doubt, but North should permit West to hold the first club lead. Now West can only try to put his partner in with a spade. This effort will be successful, but when East returns the club 3, the distribution of his hand will be at least in part revealed. North, therefore, should win the second club lead and lay down the high spade in his own hand. West will have to discard on this lead, and his discard must be either a heart or a club.

If a club goes, it reduces the possible margin of defeat by 1 trick, and if a heart is discarded, then it must be because West is finding it difficult to make a safe discard; otherwise he would not discard from his holding in the suit which North first bid. After winning the high spade, North should count the possible cost. He can see that at worst he is down 2, if he cashes his high cards—namely, three spades, two hearts, one club and one diamond. The question of the odds on the diamond finesse is, of course, slightly in favor of the honors being divided, and if this is true, North's contract is assured with this line of play. However, there is a chance that the remaining high diamonds may fall, and this also gives North his contract.

The question is fairly close as to whether c. not a second diamond finesse should be taken, but I think it is very clear that North should hold up the club Ace until he has some knowledge of the opposing hands. The hand is difficult to play under the stress of actual competition, but really North and South seem to have too great an array of honors to go down 700.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What is the correct bid according to the Culbertson System on this hand?

♠ A K Q 8 7 6 2 ♡ Q J 10 9 8 ◇ Q ♣ —

Answer: It is optional whether to bid one spade or four spades.

Butter used for sandwiches will go much farther and be easier to spread if it is first creamed with lemon juice, in the proportion of one teaspoonful to 2 oz. of butter.

Health Value of "Soft Drinks" Lies in Purity

It is amazing to learn how tremendous is the industry engaged in the manufacture of carbonated beverages and fruit juices. Since more than 11 billion bottles of non-alcoholic beverages were consumed in this country last year, you can see that the industry is a very important one. Until recently these beverages were looked upon merely as "soft drinks." Today they are accepted by food authorities as a nutritional and valuable part of the diet.

Dr. Copeland

There are many varieties of such beverages, varying as to color, taste and flavor. In former years non-injurious artificial coloring materials, as well as sugar, citric, tartaric and other fruit acids, were added for flavor. The law now demands that all the ingredients of the bottle be printed on its label.

These drinks have been accepted as a food, for most manufacturers now add fruit extracts and natural fruit juices for flavoring purposes. This eliminates the unbeneficial use of synthetic flavors.

The value and importance of fruits and fruit juices cannot be overemphasized. They are valuable because they contain important vitamins and mineral substances so essential for proper growth and development.

I receive many inquiries as to the safety of the popular soft drinks. I am glad to say that most of them are harmless to health, and in most instances actually beneficial. They are manufactured under the rigid inspection of federal and state authorities.

When you purchase a soft drink be sure that the bottle is properly sealed. If it contains coloring matter carefully read the label. Avoid drinks that are not labeled. By preference choose the drink that has been made from fruit extracts or the natural fruit, rather than those colored or flavored with synthetic substances.

These beverages usually contain some sugar or other sweetening matter of value in supplying heat and energy to the body. When added energy is needed during a busy day, a fruit juice beverage is stimulating and refreshing.

Within recent years fruit juices, particularly orange juice, have become increasingly popular. Since they contain valuable vitamins necessary for health and proper growth, it is now customary to give fruit juices to the infant as well as the adult.

Vitamins A, B, C and G are found in tomato juice. These vitamins prevent deficiency diseases, such as beri-beri, scurvy and rickets. They stimulate the appetite and help ward off infections of the skin and mucous membranes of the body. Orange juice, tomato juice or prune juice may be given to the infant as early as the sixth month.

Corkscrew Found In Trunk of Tree

Recently wood choppers cut down a large cottonwood tree, which pioneers say was planted 60 years ago. The trunk measured 42 inches in diameter, and imbedded in the heart of it was a large corkscrew. More than half a century ago a brewery was located on the block where the tree was cut down.

DETROIT, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Victoria E. Hurd took no chances on molestation when she attended the funeral of her husband, William P. Hurd, former wealthy Detroit lumberman. BENZ DEFENDS MILK SYSTEM

According to Dr. J. Benz, of the City Bureau of Child Welfare, the city's system of milk distribution to the needy is the best that could be worked out in the present emergency. He was answering statements that much of the free milk distributed through state funds to school children was going to families receiving aid from other agencies.

Speaking at the fourth luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Council of Food and Health Officials in the William Penn Hotel, he said that with 95,000 children in city schools reported undernourished, compared with 75,000 less than a year ago, the necessity of feeding them is apparent. At least 99 per cent are deserving, he concluded.

Other speakers were Dr. H. C. Mellor, of the City Health Department, and Robert F. Binton, chief of the State Bureau of Milk Control.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengué (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

ONE-THIRD GAIN IN ADVERTISING PREDICTED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—More than $300,000,000, an increase of about 33 per cent, is expected to be spent in advertising during 1933, according to a study of business conditions released through Lee H. Bristol, of New York, president of the Association of National Advertisers, at the opening of its twenty-third annual meeting here yesterday.

The results of the business survey released by Mr. Bristol showed that over one-half the reporting companies of the association had increased total sales volumes in units during the past three months; 16½ per cent reported a decrease and about 10 per cent that the sales volume had remained the same. The median of the increase in sales was approximately 23 per cent.

As the comparison was between the three months of August, September and October against the three months previous of May, June and July, it is noted that about one-half of the companies reporting an increase attributed it to seasonal influence and about 82 per cent of the other half of those reporting an increase, stated it was due to improved conditions in their particular trade.

The survey also showed that 35 per cent of the reporting companies plan to increase their appropriations over those of 1932; 35 per cent expect to spend the same amount and 22 per cent plan decreases. Member manufacturers of drug and toilet articles plan as large or larger appropriations in 1933 as in 1932. In the food and grocery classification, about one-half plan to increase; 20 per cent to decrease, and 30 per cent to repeat the same appropriation.

Artillery Officers Given Promotions

The State Department of Military Affairs yesterday announced appointment of George Theodore Pettay, 304 Pennsylvania avenue, Oakmont, as first lieutenant assigned to Second Battalion Headquarters, 107th Field Artillery, stationed at Pittsburgh.

Promotion of Capt. Edwin Conner to major at headquarters of the Second Battalion, 107th Field Artillery, stationed at Pittsburgh, also was announced. Maj. Conner lives at 416 Brilliant avenue, Aspinwall.

Santa Claus Wins Tilt, Retains Post Office

Postmaster General Brown decided today against proposals to abolish the postoffice of that name in Indiana.

For years the little postoffice has been deluged with mail at Christmas. This has caused extra labor in the Postoffice Department, and last year, after it had set up equipment to handle the rush, there was a sharp decrease in the mail handled. This brought suggestions that the postoffice's name be changed but Mr. Brown has said "No."

BE NATURAL

Ordinary Plates are often called "False Teeth"—they actually LOOK false. Teeth, to appear natural, must conform with the mouth and features of the wearer in every respect—each case should be a separate study. HOLLOW CHEEKS, WRINKLES AND THOSE DREADED DRAWN LINES are often caused by wearing the old-fashioned "False Teeth."

DR. FRIEDLANDER'S

Individual Expression Plates

1. Perfectly adapted to the facial muscles so that you can eat, talk and laugh freely.
2. Their color is individually matched to the patient's complexion as an artist matches colors.

I have some thrilling news for you today—a betrothal. The junior Callender Irvine Leipers, of Sewickley, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Maria, to David Millar, Jr., of Forest Hill, Long Island.

Maria is a graduate of Vassar College. She's a descendant of Thomas Leiper, a leader in business and civic affairs in Philadelphia in the eighteenth century. He was a founder and first sergeant of the First City Troop of Philadelphia, Gen. Washington's bodyguard during the Revolution.

She's also a decendant of Gen. William Irvine, who distinguished himself in the Revolution and who later was in command of the Western Department of the Army with headquarters at Fort Pitt, Pittsburgh.

Of Lewis Family

Also among her forbears are members of the Lewis family of Virginia, who won prominence in the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Through her mother, who was Beatrice Marley, the bride-to-be traces her ancestry to the colonial families of Stanborough, Chatfield and Halsey, and is of the twelfth generation in direct line from Francis Higginson, first pastor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony at Salem.

Mr. Millar is the eldest son of the David Millars, of Forest Hill and Amagansett, L. I. He attended Columbia University and is a member of Columbia University Club and Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

At a pretty, informal ceremony at 7:45 o'clock last evening in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Wiegel, of Crafton, Miss Irene Virginia Wiegel became the bride of George Craik Dewar, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dewar, of Des Moines, Ia. Miss Harriett Belle Wiegel, sister of the bride, played the wedding music, and she wore blue net and a spray of yellow pompon chrysanthemums.

The ceremony took place under an arch decorated with white pompon chrysanthemums from the center of which hung a large bell of carnations and white pompons. The house was decorated throughout with white and gold chrysanthemums in tall urns and vases.

The bride wore a gown of gold colored rough crepe having full sleeves of shirred brown velvet and a corsage of white roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Marian Wiegel, who wore powder blue rough crepe with a corsage of yellow pompons. John MacDonald Dewar was his brother's best man. Mrs. Wiegel chose a gown of dark wine colored velvet and gardenias.

There was a reception after the ceremony and receiving with the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. Wiegal and Miss Harriett Belle Wiegel.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewar are motoring to Des Moines, where they will visit the bridegroom's parents and later will make their home in Crafton avenue, Crafton.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

James Shirley Austin, Jr., son of the J. Shirley Austins, whose picture appears above, is not little Lord Fauntleroy.

Early in his kindergarten career this fall, he arrived home, grinning but dirty and torn.

Young Mr. Austin explained to his worried mother that he had been in a fight with one of his classmates. His mother, much disturbed, explained that he must not start fights, but of course he must not run away from one.

A few days later he came home again looking as though he had been in a fight.

"I beat him this time, mother," he crowed.

And his mother has decided that she must try to reconcile herself. Boys just will fight.

Little Georgie Quaile, the Reginald Quailes' son, who is still much too young for kindergarten, was having his picture taken at the Schenley Park Conservatory, to be used in connection with publicity for the Junior League's Children's Hour Saturday morning.

The photographer asked young Georgie to look up at a pitcher plant and to touch it. But he squeezed it, and was delighted when water squirted out of the plant. And he just couldn't resist squeezing it each time the photographer was ready to take the picture.

IT'S here at last! A soap that makes your most unpleasant job easy! A soap that works quickly : : : that is economical to use : : : a soap that will not hurt your hands.

Silver Dust is its name, and it dissolves as quickly as snow. The instant it touches water it bursts into millions of tiny bubbles that surround the particles of dirt and grease and float them away.

So if you find dishwashing a disagreeable task, we suggest that you follow these three simple rules: First, scrape dishes thoroughly. Then, put them in hot Silver Dust suds. And last, for quickest results, rinse them and dry them with the famous Silver Dust (Patex) towel. This is the towel that does three times the work of ordinary towels and leaves no lint. If you want some, our special offer printed at the right will tell you how to get them.

Once you have washed dishes this way, you will agree that it is no longer the unpleasant task it used to be. Compare this method with the one you've been using. The difference will amaze and delight you.

You can buy Silver Dust at your grocer's, and you can get your Patex towels by taking advantage of our special offer printed below. But by all means get Silver Dust from your grocer without delay.

THE COLD WEATHER DRESS AS THE CHIC PARISIENNE SEES IT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Cold-weather dresses are among the important contributions that Paris makes to American fashions—but in America they find different uses than in the country of their birth. In France the cold-weather dress is designed to be worn in houses that are sparsely heated; the little wool sweaters and vestees that come from the Paris dressmaking world are supposed to be worn in the house, not out-of-doors. In America, strangely enough, these very sweaters and vestees serve to makes an ordinary dress over into an outdoor costume; the French indoor frock becomes, in America, an out-of-doors dress and wrap.

* * *

SCHIAPARELLI MAKES this type of dress-and-accessories in three pieces—and in an unusual manner. There is first of all a sturdy wool dress—usually with a knitted top of some kind. Then there is a little vest, topped by a jacket; either vest or jacket may be worn with the dress with equal completeness, or all three may be worn at one time.

* * *

THE SCHIAPARELLI trio in today's sketches is unusual for its color as well as general plan. The wool of the skirt and of the cardigan jacket is an eponge, striped in red, blue and brown, while the top of the dress and the vestee are in dark blue knit, bordered with a lighter tint of the same shade. The vest is literally a vest—having no back at all, save a narrow band at the waistline and a collar. Vest and frock are both fastened with copper clips.

HOLIDAY CHEER FOR NEEDY

While Father Cox is courageously struggling to find the funds to feed an ever increasing bread line at Old St. Patrick's to supply the homes of the needy and jobless with baskets of food and to furnish much-needed clothing to the scantily clad as winter sets in he is working on an ambitious plan to make Thanksgiving Day all that the term implies with as many destitute families as possible.

He has set his goal at no less than 1,000 bountiful baskets for distribution at Thanksgiving time—not only a "chicken for every pot," but a turkey if possible. Father Cox said yesterday:

"The time-old saying that 'half the world does not know how the other half lives' was never more true than it is today. I have on my lists for daily assistance scores of families whose circumstances were so rosy before the depression came that they never dreamed they would have to depend on charity for their daily bread. Naturally their humiliation is pitiful, and it is a delicate task to take care of them."

For his special Thanksgiving relief drive, Father Cox is making an appeal to all who are in a position to help—particularly the farmers and the truck gardeners who have a surplus to spare. He asks that they send it directly to Old St. Patrick's. Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue, as far in advance of Thanksgiving Day as possible.

The Father Cox relief fund gets a liberal cash commission for every subscription for the Sun-Telegraph obtained by him and his workers or through the special blank printed on this page. He says this is the only direct contact he has for getting cash to carry on his relief work.

SINGS IN COURT TO FIGHT CASE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A crooner strummed his banjo and sang in court yesterday in hopes of proving his performance could not have embarrassed a woman who seeks $10,000 damages.

The crooner, Don Galvin, 24, of New York, was sued by Mrs. Suzanne B. Nall, 45, who alleged the spotlight was turned on her as she attended a theater performance here, and Galvin came down from the stage and sang into her ear something about "Between your chair and my chair maybe there'll be a high chair."

As a result, Mrs. Nall said, she became extremely nervous, fainted when leaving the theater, was taken ill and had lost 20 pounds since the incident happened last year.

Galvin played and sang in court to support contentions of counsel that his performance was not objectionable. The courtroom was crowded for the free entertainment.

$8,486 Awarded In Collision Suit

City Policeman Walter J. Mullen; his wife, Mrs. Marie J. Mullen, and daughter, Lucille R. Mullen, 13, were awarded damages aggregating $8,486.85 by a jury in Federal Court, against the National Bread Company. Mrs. Mullen and her daughter were injured December 5, 1931, when their automobile was struck by a truck of the defendant company, on West Carson street. The award to the daughter was $6,000.

MILK SITUATION MYSTIFIES KING

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, said he was "mystified" by the Pittsburgh milk situation.

Invited to arbitrate a dispute between milk dealers and dairymen a week ago, he was unable to act because of illness. Since then he received a letter from a farmers' organization saying a final price agreement had been reached.

He said last night he has received no invitation for another conference, and expressed belief that "there must be something brewing."

Dr. King, former Secretary of Revenue, has arbitrated a number of similar disputes elsewhere in Pennsylvania and in other states.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CORONA, Cal., Nov. 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

You couldn't pick up a paper for a year and a half, but it told the millions and millions of gold shipped to France, especially. Our whole export trade consisted of gold bars to Europe. They tried everything from petty larceny to manslaughter to get us off the gold. If they had been able to do it, their celebration would have been bigger than the Armistice. I was in Europe and that's all they talked of. Then for France to say they can't pay. Here is the funny part about the whole thing, why don't they default? Oh, no, they never use that word. They don't want it said they "defaulted."

Yours, WILL.

WAGE DISPUTE BLAMED FOR DUAL KILLING

Erdlen Defaulted on Employe's Pay, Police Learn

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Investigation at the woodland farm of John C. Erdlen, aged farmer, today had left police with a new theory that the recluse had killed John Geip, his 30-year-old farm hand, in an argument over wages, and then slashed his own throat.

Weighted down with stones in a stream at the bottom of a ravine, the torso of Geip was discovered Monday night, and the body of Erdlen, his throat slashed, was found in a thicket Tuesday.

FARM SEARCHED

Police searched the farm and nearby countryside to learn whether other bodies might have been concealed. The investigators emphasized they had no definite information of other crimes.

Geip received $15 a month and board for working on the Erdlen farm. Police, discarding a previous theory that the death of Geip resulted from jealousy over a housekeeper, said they learned Erdlen was unable to pay Geip last month.

Sifting their investigation, the police disclosed they found expensive fur coats and dresses in Erdlen's home; that he often inserted advertisements in Pittsburgh newspapers for housekeepers and farmhands and that he received visits from men unknown to neighbors.

WAS CHURCH-GOER

Although neighbors regarded him as a recluse, Chief of Police James Campbell of Wellersburg, 10 miles from the farm, said the farmer was a diligent Sunday church-goer and frequently came to town.

State police said they had determined that after Geip was slain, his body was dismembered with a cleaver and a saw. Only the torso was found. The slayer attempted to burn the arms and legs in a stove.

Church, Miss Lillie B. Bradley, Mrs. A. H. Parlett, Mrs. Chrisholm Garland, Mrs. E. H. Broden, Mrs. A. F. B. Morris, Mrs. Frank C. Pierson, Mrs. F. E. Craig, Mrs. R. D. Campbell and Mrs. Merle R. WORKERS SEEK FINAL HALF OF FUND QUOTA

Denial Scheduled on Rumors as to Clerks' Pay

Eight thousand campaign workers for the Welfare Fund's 1933 budget of more than $2,500,000 were struggling today to keep Allegheny County's contributions up to schedule.

Half the two-week campaign has elapsed; half of the requested amount has been raised. The next week will be spent in a struggle to get an additional $1,250,000 in pledges.

Today's report luncheon was to be in charge of the Sewickley division of the campaign organization, with Mrs. Alexander Laughlin as chairman. More than $150,000 has already been reported in gifts by this group.

DENIES HIGH PAY

Leo G. Griffith, head of the information bureau of the drive, was to speak. His bureau receives and checks rumors and stories against the Fund. He was to tell of some of them today.

One of the reports he was to deny is that clerks and stenographers in the Welfare Fund offices receive $35 and $40 per week. They average $15 weekly, and each comes from a needy family, Griffith declares.

Frank J. Chesterman, vice president of the Corporation Division, spoke at yesterday's luncheon in place of Frank R. Phillips, division chairman. He announced 10 new contributions averaging $1,292 each.

ATTORNEY SAYS SHE UPHOLDS 'FREE LOVE'

Letter Read in Court Telling of Part in Hunger March

Fighting to retain possession of her 6-year-old daughter Dorothy, Mrs. Emma Rosen, 28, of Colwell street, today denied on the witness stand her estranged husband's charges that she was a communist and tried to teach her child there is no God.

The father, Arthur Rosen, former Wylie avenue druggist, now residing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rosen, Climax street, had instituted habeas corpus proceedings to obtain custody of the child.

In support of the husband's contention that his wife is a Communist, a letter was read which she had written him from Hillsboro, N. H., last June, telling of participating in a hunger march, sleeping all night on a park bench and being harassed by police with tear gas bombs.

Judge James H. Gray adjourned the hearing until tomorrow when Attorney J. I. Simon said he would produce witnesses to testify that Mrs. Rosen believed in "free love."

SENDS BULLET WITH THREAT

Plainclothes Officer John Shaughnessy, attached to the South Side Police Station, today received a .32-caliber bullet and a threatening letter from an unidentified correspondent, who said he was a member of the "Better Government Committee."

Purporting to have been written from 222 Carson street—a stone retaining wall—the letter said Shaughnessy had no right to beat people even if they are guilty. The letter, after accusing the police of collecting graft and protecting vice resorts, said:

"You'll get it when you are not expecting it. Just a little warning."

The letter also included a threat to other South Side officers.

WILD CARGO

With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXXI.

In half a minute he appeared with a scooped-out gourd full of water and a bundle of rags. While Ali held the injured wrist tightly with both hands I tied a cloth around the fore arm to form a tourniquet, then I washed out the jagged wound. Next I fished around in the torn flesh until I got hold of the severed artery which I held between my thumb and forefinger while I again chased the boss of the premises into his shack, this time for a piece of twine with which I tied the artery.

Then I got hold of a two-wheeled native cart—the only conveyance available — and to this I hitched a little Sumatra pony that the cocoanut grower let me borrow. In this primitive vehicle I drove the injured Batik to a rubber plantation two and a half miles off that was managed by a Dutch friend of mine. Here I was able to borrow a light motor truck. Driving at breakneck speed, I headed for the town of Simitar, about 15 miles away. I left the boy in the care of a Dutch doctor who did a capable job of dressing the wound.

This doctor, by the way, told me that the boy would have bled to death if the crude first-aid to which I resorted had not been employed.

SEEKS RARE PRIZE

Some years ago I was in Negri Simbilan, a province in the western part of the Malay Peninsula. Lal was with me. We were collecting small animals such as the tri-colored squirrel, the porcupine, the binturong and the gibbon.

Negri Simbilan being the home of that elusive creature the hog-badger, I was also trying to secure a specimen of this strange animal which has never been seen in the United States. On two occasions earlier in my career I had almost landed one of these zoological rarities but each time something went wrong just as I thought I was going to secure my prize.

The hog-badger is not unlike our American badger as far as the body is concerned. Its principal point of variance is that it has a long sharp nose like that of the razorback hog, which it uses in rooting around in the ground for grubs, truffles and bulbous roots.

We were making our way through a light jungle with our nets and snares when we had the good fortune to come upon the trail of a young hog-badger. Again the goal of years was in sight. I needn't say that I was happy; for nothing pleases me more than the prospect of bringing back to America, alive, a specimen that has never before been seen here. The gleeful enthusiasm of a zoo head in the presence of a "first" gladdens the heart of the jungle-worn collector beyond anything else.

ELUDES HUNTERS

Our precious quarry had a den under a big jungle tree. I lighted and placed a "smoke pot" in the front entrance of the animal's lair. This was calculated to drive him out through the back entrance where Lal was stationed with a net. The smoke and fumes from these chemical devices

PAINTER FINED AFTER FIGHT

Two artists who disagreed over the merits of a painting also disagreed in North Side Police Court today over what happened in a West Ohio street paint store yesterday.

Alphonso Hirtz, 47, of 58 Overbeck street, testified his fellow-artist, Emil Eichenfeld, 57, of 177 Brahm street, had stabbed him in in the side with a stencil knife.

Magistrate J. J. Sweeney fined Eichenfeld $5 or 10 days in jail, and discharged Hirtz. Both were charged with disorderly conduct.

Testimony disclosed the two had been arguing for days over a tent. They also are said to have debated the excellence of Hirtz's painting, "McConnell's Mill," on display in the unemployed artists' exhibit, at 307 Wood street.

G. O. P. is Plenty Liberal, As It Gave Up 42 States

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Say, Nick, they conceded the Democrats 42 states.

If that ain't liberality then the prodigal son must have been a miser.

The Republicans gave Europe all the money we had, Nick, and that's generosity of the most elusive kind.

They steamed the budget up until the whistle blew and the safety valves got knock-kneed. They even spent their own money in the last campaign and that's certainly desperate hospitality.

We would be in much better shape, Nick, if the G. O. P. hadn't been so liberal. If you think they weren't generous with our national resources just try dipping a lamp wick in Teapot Dome. You certainly will stir up a lot of dust.

Police Shelter Jobless Family of Hikers

A jobless Cincinnati man and his family were ready today to resume their trip to the home of relatives in Baltimore, after spending the night in the North Side Police Station.

In Uniontown, Tuesday, the family got a "lift" from a truck driver, but did not discover until they arrived here that they had been taken in the wrong direction.

Penniless and hungry, Smith and his family appealed to Capt. John Flavin, who gave them meals and beds and arranged their transportation to Baltimore.

RETURN BOARD HUNTS 101 MISSING VOTES IN 14TH WARD

TOO MANY CAST FOR ESTEP AND ELLENBOGEN

The Returning Board today began a hunt for 101 votes in the Tenth District of the Fourteenth Ward. Returns from that district indicated Henry Ellenbogen, Democrat-Independent, and Harry Estep, Republican candidates in the Thirty-third Congressional District had polled a total of 567 votes. On the register, it was said, only 466 were eligible to vote. Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan ordered the ballot box of that district brought in for a recount.

With 44 of the 82 districts in the Sixth Legislative District canvassed, the election of the three Democratic candidates, Thomas J. Gallagher, John J. Kane and Jacob W. Shenkel, was practically assured.

VOTES MISSING

It was stated that the figures on the returns from the Eleventh District, Eighteenth Ward, probably would be revised. In this district Shenkel was credited with but 18 votes, and it is contended he should have been credited with 183 votes.

Gallagher, with the indorsement of both the Democratic and Republican parties, had 15,800 votes; Kane, 10,115, and Shenkel, 8,696; of the Republican opponents, Patrick Cawley had polled 7,172 and Dr. W. A. Renne, 6,689. The unofficial returns had indicated Renne's election.

THREE IN LEAD

When the board resumed work today it had completed seven districts of the Twelfth Legislative District which showed the three Democratic candidates, Rectenwald, Travers and Harmuth, running far ahead of their Republican opponents, Steedle, Boyer and Westwood. O'Rourke, with both Republican and Democratic nominations, was leading the parade. Four are to be elected.

The recount of the balloting in the First District, Second Ward, in the battle for the Second District legislative places, gave Brennan and Friel, Democrats, a gain of two votes. Metzler, Republican, lost four, and Maloney, Republican, gained four.

Later the board will tabulate votes in the Third and Fourth districts of the Ninth Ward and the First District of Rankin.

BLAMES WIFE'S MUSICAL AIMS

His wife's musical ambitions have caused her to neglect her home, Thomas C. Fair, 1327 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, asserted in asking Judge W. Heber Dithrich for a divorce from Delaphine S. Fair, of New Texas, Pa.

He testified Mrs. Fair spent much time at rehearsals and at clubs. Once when she was melancholy, he testified, he broke into the bathroom of their home and took from her some poison she was threatening to swallow. On another occasion, he said, she pointed a pistol at him.

Much of the time, Fair said, he had to prepare his own meals. They were married June 30, 1917, when she was 19 and he 22.

Drops Beer, Flees As Sleuths Pass

Dropping a carton containing 24 bottles of beer, an unidentified man fled when he saw several prohibition agents drive by in an automobile at South Twelfth and Carson streets, last night. The agents blamed the man's flight on a guilty conscience.

Frank Marks was reported arrested in a Tunnel street speakeasy, where 17 pints of whisky and 21 pints of gin were confiscated.

ICE SALES HEAD PRAISES 'ADS'

Newspaper advertising prepared with copy that sells is an important factor to the ice industry, Frank B. Ostermueller, of Dallas, told convention delegates of the National Association of Ice Industries, which closes its sessions tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel.

Ostermueller, chairman of the association's marketing service, emphasized the industry needs "all the space we can buy to sell the economies and efficiencies of ice refrigeration and ice refrigerators that are modern." He urged:

"Our industry needs copy that sells. The success of any campaign is centering all forces on a certain objective; everything toward one goal. Get the same story over from every angle."

E. A. Brandt, secretary of the national technical department, reported commercial and domestic ice cooling systems installations enjoyed a 400 per cent gain. Advancements, made through study at the University of Illinois, have improved freezing time by 50 per cent, he said.

250,000 WRITE LINDY 'ADVICE' IN KIDNAPING

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The tedious search for clues in the Lindbergh kidnaping from the examination of 125 men who had helped build the flier's house and the road leading to it, at Hopewell, down through the scrutiny of 250,000 letters received at the Lindbergh home was reviewed today by Inspector Harry W. Walsh, of the Jersey City Police Department.

His account of the search is set down in the second of a series of stories copyrighted by the Jersey Journal.

OUIJA BOARD CLUES

The letters, he said, were not only from numerologists, psychics, ouija board mystics and religious fanatics, but from "prominent lawyers and doctors who would charge stiff fees for five minutes' attention to a client." He said:

"There were letters in many foreign languages, including Japanese. All of these were sent to court interpreters for translation and report."

After that they were checked if they looked good, and filed away. Six state troopers read and sorted the daily mail.

Checking the men who had worked on the house and road the detectives found them scattered through New Jersey, Manhattan, Brooklyn and Staten Island. Nothing came of this.

Every toll telephone call made to and from Hopewell for a month prior to the crime was also checked through the telephone company's toll slips.

HOMES SEARCHED

Every house within a radius of five miles of the Lindbergh home was searched and a detailed report made of its rooms, outhouses, wells and cellars attached to the house.

Every paroled or pardoned convict from every penal institution in the state was checked, and every patient paroled or discharged from insane asylums in the state was also investigated.

In addition, the detectives, Walsh said, investigated every airport within 25 miles of the Lindbergh estate, every railroad station, every bus and cab driver for the purpose of seeing if anyone had seen anybody carrying a baby of the Lindbergh child's description on the night of March 1.

Cranks visited the house and were given a hearing, Walsh said:

"It all added to the burden of the search, but the manhunt proceeded. Not an angle was slighted or overlooked."

BANK REFUSED R. F. C. LOAN

Concerted efforts to save the Real Estate Savings and Trust Company, North Side, which closed yesterday, through loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were futile, it was revealed today, because of lack of sufficient collateral to justify a loan large enough to ensure lasting support to the bank. The institution failed to open its doors yesterday.

A R. F. C. loan in September gave the bank $136,000. It was learned that further loans made this week would only have carried the institution for a few weeks, with a constant drain on its deposits insuring its eventual closure.

DENIES LINDY, ROSNER LINK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in a statement yesterday denied his office had anything to do with Charles A. Lindenbergh's decision to seek underworld aid in the search for his kidnaped son.

The denial was of published assertions attributed to Inspector Harry W. Walsh, of the Jersey City police, to the effect that Col. Henry Breckenridge, friend of Lindbergh, had telephoned Hoover soon after the kidnaping, and had been told the "best informer at his command" would be sent to the Lindbergh home.

The Hoover statement said:

"The inference that I, or the United States Bureau of Investigation, employed or recommend the employment of Morris Rosner is entirely unwarranted. Neither I nor any official of the United States Bureau of Investigation identified in any way with the Lindbergh investigation had anything whatever to do with the employment of Morris Rosner or his connection with the Lindbergh inquiry. Furthermore, I believe it proper also to state at this time that Morris Rosner has not at any time been employed in any capacity by the United States Bureau of Investigation."

GARBO ENJOYS PARIS MOVIE

Greta Garbo came to Europe for a rest from Hollywood directors, grease paint and all the trappings used in the great American game of movies.

Well, what did she go and do?

She took a side trip to London and to escape publicity, she wore big horn-rimmed spectacles, not unlike those in circulation in Hollywood.

Then what did she do?

Well, sir, she came on to Paris, adding a little more movie paraphernalia on the way, including a very dark wig.

But, then what—?

Believe it or not, the Garbo kicked over the traces last night and went to a slapstick movie in the Champs Elysees.

Of the indictments, 136 were handed down yesterday, many charging violations of the narcotic laws. Patrick Nee, alias Paddy Nee, Mrs. Katherine Lilly, of Center avenue, and six Chinese were indicted. Nee, Mrs. Lilly and Lee Jack Li were charged with conspiring to violate the Harrison and Jones-Miller narcotic acts.

INJURED MAN SAVES TRAIN

VINCENNES, Ind., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The man who fell asleep at the switch bears no resemblance to Fireman James Freeman, who was being congratulated as a hero today as he lay in a hospital.

Freeman leaped from a train to throw a switch. He fell, broke two ribs and dislocated his shoulder. Although suffering great pain, he crawled to the switch and threw it in time to permit a fast passenger train to pass on a clear track, thus averting possible disaster.

Then he fainted beside the switch, only a few inches from the speeding wheels of the express.

make an animal so uncomfortable that it is forced to retreat to the open where there is breathable air.

But the most experienced animal man finds himself fooled on occasion. I had not figured on a third—and completely invisible—means of egress. The den had another entrance, or exit—whichever you choose to call it—and through this hidden leaf-covered opening the animal ran. He hot-footed it across an open space for about 50 yards, heading straight for a spot where no doubt he had sought refuge before.

Now he frantically made it his destination, scrambling through the first convenient opening in the thickly matted foliage, and quickly disappearing from view. As the animal was only half-grown it was no bigger than a raccoon, which greatly simplified the business of hiding.

BITTEN BY COBRA

Lal, dip-net in hand, was in full pursuit. Reaching the clump of brush into which the hog-badger had disappeared he started crawling in on his hands and knees. When his body was halfway inside he let out an agonized shriek and suddenly withdrew. As he scrambled to his feet I saw that he held a full-grown black cobra — about two and a half feet in length —by the back of the head! It had bitten him on the side of the left hand below his little finger and he had yanked it away with his other hand.

A look of terror on his face, he dropped the snake at my feet as I came running up. I cracked it over the head with a heavy stick with which I had been poking around in the badger's den, and killed it.

Then I turned my attention to Lal. The boy acted as if he considered himself a goner. In size the black cobra is not so much (representatives of the species over three feet long are seldom found) but its venom is one of the deadliest known to man. The black cobra accounts for many lives every year, and to the Hindu or Malay who regularly hears of these casualties this reptile is a symbol of quick and horrible death.

I could see the two little punctures where the fangs had entered. The horrified boy stood staring at them, his eyes bulging and a soft moan escaping his quivering lips.

I always wear a "perspiration towel" around my neck when working in the jungle. I took this quickly and tied it around the boy's forearm, putting a stick in it so that I could twist it as hard as I pleased to be sure the flow of blood was absolutely stopped.

FACES DEATH

I twisted so hard that the boy screamed with pain. Then we made it on the run for the hut about a half mile away where I was headquartering in a native kompong. As we ran I held the boy's arm to be sure that the towel I had squeezed so cruelly around it stayed in place.

As we tore along the poor boy called on Vishnu and other gods to save him. Lal was not lacking in courage but there is a certain finality about a black cobra bite. It usually means a funeral. Occasionally when there is white supervision a native is saved; but that doesn't happen often enough to be noticeable.

As soon as we reached our hut I got a razor blade out of my kitbag and started slashing criss-crosses all over the area of the wound until I opened it up completely. Then I got out a bottle of permanganate of potash crystals, and, twisting the boy's hand so that the wound was as wide open as possible, I sprinkled crystals all over the opening until it was full of them. I kept squeezing out the blood and renewing the crystals.

Then I gave the lad two or three stiff drinks of brandy—not because of any curative effect I thought this would have, but to buck him up.

In less than half an hour after our return to the shack the boy's hand began to turn black. In the course of the next two or three hours his whole arm, all the way around to the shoulder blade, also turned black.

I laid him out on a bamboo bench and kept renewing the crystals. Then I took his temperature and found it to be a little over 103.

There was nothing more I could do for him. The whole business was now in the lap of the gods.

P. and W. Va. Gets Rate Authority

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted authority to the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway to establish and maintain commodity rates from, to, and via the Connellsville extension of the railroad without observing the long-and-short-haul provision of the Interstate Commerce Act.

The commission did not approve any rates that may be filed under this authority, all such rates being subject to complaint, investigation and correction.

Tate Boys Face Trial For Father's Murder

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Three youthful mountaineers, sons of Isley Tate, West Virginia farmer, who was slain from ambush two months ago, will go on trial for murder next month.

The defendants, held in the county jail, are Sam, John and George. They were arrested shortly after the crime which occerred in Fayette County a few miles from the West Virginia line.

Gumchewers Warned Of Wasted Motion

CHICAGO, Nov. 17. — (AP.) — Gum chewing and listless stenographers better watch out. Nowadays, they're using moving pictures of office employes, taken when they are not looking, to discover wasted motions. A demonstration was held at the Society of Industrial Engineers. They run them slowly so nothing is missed.

SLOW STOMACH
DIETING WON'T HELP—THIS WILL

Most "indigestion" has been found imaginary! The pains and gas and all that misery are real, of course. But nine times in ten they are symptoms only of slow stomach.

Did you know you can regulate your stomach to empty in six hours, as it should? That this is as easy as moving the bowels?

One box of Pape's Diapepsin will test your stomach and correct your digestion time in a couple of days—at a cost of thirty cents!

Each tablet of diapepsin saves the stomach half an hour's labor. If your stomach is an hour slow, two tablets will remedy the trouble. Then eat anything. Baked beans every noon if you like them. Lobster at midnight suppers. These will digest like crackers and milk in a six-hour stomach!

Pape's Diapepsin stimulates the gastric flow. Use it freely until the stomach is working right without any help. When it slows down, take diapepsin again for a day or two. This helps coffee drinkers and hard smokers, too.

VIRULENT GERMS ALWAYS PRESENT IN COMMON COLD

TESTS PROVE SUPERIORITY OF VAPEX

Unbiased tests by a prominent medical research laboratory prove that the vapor of a single drop of Vapex kills dense colonies of germs present in head-colds. In exactly similar tests, other inhalants (often offered as substitutes for Vapex) were shown to be greatly inferior in germ-killing power.

Kills germs

Many cheaper imitations of Vapex are said to be "just as good." But Science proves they are not. Vapex has a remarkable germ-killing power. This is the extra value that Vapex brings you at very little extra cost.

A PROMINENT medical research laboratory, after two years' experiment, has found that Vapex kills dense concentrations of germs always present during a head-cold. While many other inhalants have slight effect.

This is a good reason to always insist on Vapex when you need an inhalant. At the new reduced price of 75c, you'll find that it doesn't pay to bother with cheaper substitutes. These tests prove that they are seldom "just as good as Vapex."

See how pleasant Vapex is to breathe . . . how easy to use . . . how sure and swift in relieving your distress. Moreover, it's safe to use for children. Sold at all druggists.

INTO THE VALLEY OF DEATH

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by John Charlton, after the famous painting depicting the heroic Charge of the Light Brigade in the face of a withering fire at the battle of Balaklava in the Crimean War (1854). "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

Hint

It's flattering for me to know
That I am utmost in your mind;
When I displease, you tell me so
In manner feminine and kind.

My tactless ways, my lack of poise,
Are driven home with subtle grace;
And I'm the luckiest of boys
To hear your sermons, face to face.

I realize that I've improved
A hundredfold since I've met you;
By your permission I've been moved
To drop the things I shouldn't do.

But now, since each obnoxious trait
Is parked forever on the shelf,
I really think it would be great
If you'd improve a bit, yourself!

Overheard

Al Brackman says he overheard it on a Bronx express. One passenger said to another:

"I like the people in the Bronx. They are smart, energetic, hard workers. But—I can't understand—why is it when you ask them a question the usually answer you with one?"

To which the other replied:

"So wot do you want from me?"

Ma-Ma!!!

"Dear Winchell," writes Drut, "your detractors (everything else having failed) are now busily spreading the report that you give waiters nickel tips. As if you ever gave them that much!"

As If You Didn't Know

Miss Guinan (and what happened to her wedding plans?) wants to spoil today's column with:

"Wives have beauty secrets, and husbands have secret beauties."

Just for the Records

Far be it from us to proofread that swell writer and grand rhetorician, Mr. B. DeCasseres, but it simply has to be done, so that future historians won't be misled. In his article on "Jack's" for Mr. Mencken, DeCasseres sets forth that Sam Johnson said:

Now, DeCasseres can usually be depended upon to get a quotation correctly, only this is what Johnson said in his talks with Boswell:

"Claret is the liquor for boys; port for men; but he who aspires to be a hero must drink brandy."

It seems to some of us that Ben has made a better job of it than Johnson did, but he was quoting Johnson. We mean misquoting him. And so long as we can't prevent an army from misquoting us almost daily, we get just as much fun stopping DeCasseres from misquoting another Boswell.

As for Instance

Paris 69 11 0415 NLT Walter Winchell, New York, U. S. A. Deny immediately any rumors you published about divorce stop how do you get that way stop am notifying your employer by cable about your impertinence stop watch your step or you will be in the soupline like the rest stop cable me at once that you have retracted this statement. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Netcher.

Mr. Netcher is the husband of Rosie Dolly. We have searched our files back to September 1 and cannot locate the report in question. We can't recall mentioning them since we first announced their marriage. Perhaps it appeared elsewhere. The only satisfaction we get out of this abuse is knowing again that with the dozens of gossip commentators, the alleged victims think of us first.

Oop!

A reader dares us to look up "Fourth Estate" (under "estate"), on page 583 of Funk & Wagnalls' New Standard Dictionary (1930) and publish the definition, which is as follows:

"Fourth Estate—the newspaper press; so designated humorously, as a distinct power in the state; formerly, also, the persons constituting the lowest and unrepresented classes of society, as distinguished from the commons."

Swelegant Similes

Jill Waters: Busy as a green pea falling off a knife . . . Malicious as the thoughts of the star's understudy at a Broadway opening night.

Pun's the Word

Al Brackman uses "Petunia" in this wise: "Petunia Old Gray Bonnet" . . . J. M. Josefsberg handles "Theresa" thus: "Theresa Crowd" . . . and Benny Rubin goes to town with these song titles: "Dressler, That's My Baby!" . . . "Oh, Say Cagney See?" . . . "Ayres Danger In Your Eyes, Cherie" . . . "Langdon Bridge Is Falling Down" . . . "Who Paid Durante for Mrs. Rip Van Winkle?" . . . "Love, Your Magic Schmeling's Everywhere" . . . "Bennett's Apple Blossom Time in Normandy" . . . "Poor Butterworth 'neath the blossoms waiting."

Myrna Loy Praised

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17. No actress in Hollywood is making steadier progress this year than Myrna Loy. If you can believe Leslie Howard, she gives a notable performance in "Animal Kingdom," and now R-K-O is keeping her on the lot to play John Barrymore's leading woman in "Topaze."

This character, which once served Mary Duncan on the coast, is one of the important trio in the Marcel Pagnol satire. With the additional emphasis R-K-O plans to give it in the talkie version, it will be one of the biggest assignments yet undertaken by the exotic Myrna.

Myrna Loy

And while it again discovers her as a woman who lives by her wits, there will be more than the usual amount of sympathy.

With the script of Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer already okayed by David Selznick, shooting should start on "Topaze" in a week or 10 days. Director Harry D'Arrast makes final arrangements as soon as he arrives here from New York.

Last week-end found a good part of Hollywood treking to Palm Springs for the official opening of the winter season. Each of the hotels in the desert resort had its quota of stars, who came to rest, ride, play golf, dance, swim and to enjoy the various attractions of this spot.

O'Neill Knows Better Now; Irish Players Return; Shaw's Million

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Eugene O'Neill takes definite rank as a truly great writer through an article in the December issue of "The American Spectator," that new literary magazine of only four large newspaper pages without a single advertisement. O'Neill is writing "Second Thoughts" about his own plays, and asks what he would change if he had to write them again. He names four plays, including "The Fountain," which he considers too painfully bungled in their present form to be worth producing at all.

That puts O'Neill among truly great writers because it reveals him as a sound critic of his own work. If he would include "Dynamo" in his list of painfully bungled plays, that would show him as a very great writer. Somebody said that everybody makes mistakes, but only a genius will see his mistakes and profit by them.

Mr. Seibel

Much, it seems, may still be hoped for from O'Neill, whose "Strange Interlude" has now reached the screen. With Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in the principal roles it ought to be picturesque, aside from the novel devices possible through talkie technique of making the asides audible without moving of the players' lips.

IRISH PLAYERS AGAIN

One of the more important events of the season will be the return of the Irish Players from the Abbey Theater, for a week in the Nixon. When they were last here, they had no adequate stage to appear on, shifting from the Twentieth Century Club to Carnegie Music Hall. Yet they revealed the best dramatic work of that season, second only to the performance of the Moscow Players years ago.

The Dubliners again have most of their fine players with them: Eileen Crowe, P. J. Carolan, F. J. McCormick, Michael J. Dolan and Maureen Delany. They have the same repertoire of interesting dramas, from Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" to O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock." There are a few novelties, including Lennox Robinson's 'Crabbed Youth and Age" and T. C. Murray's "Birthright," which have not been seen here. They also have a short play by William Butler Yeats, now in America, who is the real poet of the Irish Renaissance.

MORE ABOUT SHAW

Meanwhile that Anglicized and internationalized Irishman, Bernard Shaw, is being treated as if he were already among the Immortals — which is out of order until a man is dead. Archibald Henderson, the author of one Shaw biography among many, has expanded that book to 800 pages. One wonders how it is possible to write 800 pages about a vegetarian, but then Shaw is the most interesting vegetarian since Nebuchadnezzar.

Henderson also dwells on the fact that Shaw is the best-known Communist of our times, but has become "something less than a millionaire under capitalism." It is said Shaw draws about $80,000 a year from the United States in royalties on his plays. He might have made a hit as Shylock, if he had been an actor, for he demands and gets 15 per cent of the gross receipts.

Henderson calls Shaw a natural showman, "a congenital Barnum," who puts on his flashiest costumes and is a genius in salesmanship. He must have been all that, or he could not have collected 15 per cent royalty on plays which contain more gray matter than emotion.

They're afraid of brains both on the stage and in editorial offices of publishers. Shaw's success seems to indicate that there's a market value to brains after all. His first hearing on any stage was in 1892, when "Widower's Houses" was produced, and in these 40 years he has accumulated that million without subsidies from Moscow.

NATHAN MAKES TROUBLE

There's a very nice little tempest, generated in the teapot of Kaufman and Ferber, as a result of George Jean Nathan's slating "Dinner at Eight," latest successful play of K. & F. It seems Nathan got hold of one of the scripts from one of the actors, so he was able to write about the play before it had been produced. With his customary hyperacidity, he did not write the play up but down. Perhaps he wanted to show George S. Kaufman that the attempt to keep newspapermen from preliminary performances and rehearsals could not keep them from hurling bricks at the author.

At any rate Kaufman avers that the criticisms of Nathan were based on incidents and lines deleted from the finished play. Nathan has seen the finished play and declares the deletion of those incidents and lines has not improved it.

Anyway, the public has decided that Kaufman is right and Nathan is wrong.

"Dinner at Eight" is a success in New York, with only one regret. The regret is that Malcolm Duncan, that very fine actor who scored a hit as the husband dying of heart disease, was forced out of the cast himself by an attack of heart trouble. He had emerged from a hospital only a few days before the opening, and when I saw him at the Players' Club he was happy over his success, but doubtful about his strength. As one of the sincerest and most intelligent among American actors, it's to be hoped he will soon return to "Dinner at Eight."

New Thriller Sensible

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Apparently the makers of talkies have not yet called "no dice" on the so-called "thrill" pictures. There's one showing now in the Warner Brothers' Sheridan Square Theater that is a bit more sensible than the run-of-mine thriller. It is "Old Dark House" and one big point in its favor is the omission of things supernatural.

Then, too, there is no villain to work out black machinations. The "old dark house" is the dwelling place of an unusual family. One of its inhabitants is decidedly "screwy." The other members of the household are rather peculiar, but harmless.

Into this house come five tourists seeking shelter from a storm. And you know what the movies do to tourists foolish enough to seek shelter from a storm in an old house. The five strangers within the gates get the "works."

You won't get much of a thrill out of "Old Dark House" unless your Aunt Emma has recently been insisting that there's a Peeping Tom on the loose in your neighborhood. Less timorous souls might even find a bit of comedy in the picture.

The cast includes Boris Karloff, fast becoming an institution in "thrill" pictures; Charles Laughton, Lillian Bond, Gloria Stuart, Raymond Massey, Melvyn Douglas and four others. What honors there are should be passed to Mr. Massey.

Joan Bennett Movie Gets New Name

Cuban Storm On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures that graphically portray the hurricane that hit the Cuban coast with a loss of a thousand lives and left the southern district of the island in desolation, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. The sea wall at Havana is shown holding off the gigantic waves as the seas hurl themselves against old Morro Castle and fort across the bay.

It certainly looks as if beer is going to come back soon! Since the election men have been put to work setting up and refurnishing bars in leading hotels and restaurants in New York City, with bartenders practicing on near-beer just to keep their hand in. In a statement to Hearst Metrotone News, Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, declares we will surely have beer by Christmas if the Democratic members of the House and Senate follow up the campaign pledges of their party.

For the first time since the World War a German warship is in New York Harbor. She is the cruiser "Karlsruhe," here on a mission of good will and restored friendship. Fire boats give the new cruiser a picturesque reception with other harbor craft joining in a noisy salute.

Nine-year-old Grisha Goluboff, of San Francisco, is seen and heard as he plays a difficult violin solo in Paris, accompanied by the Lamoureux Orchestra. The boy prodigy's rendition of Tschaikowsky's Violin Concerto brings thunderous applause.

The gridiron season reaches its climax as Notre Dame beats Northwestern, 21-0, and Michigan downs Chicago, 12-0. The Michigan game, played in Ann Arbor, sees the teams battle in flurries of snow while 35,000 rooters look on.

Academy to Have Sunday Openings

Beginning Sunday night all shows coming to the Academy during the remainder of the season will open with a midnight show Sunday nights. "Whiz Bang Babies" will inaugurate this new policy.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The third subscription play of the American Theater Society series will be "Biography," coming to the Nixon, December 5, for a week that will succeed three in succession of musical productions, the third of which will be the recent New York revival of Florenz Ziegfeld's masterpiece, "Show Boat." "Biography" is by S. N. Behrman, who authored "Brief Moment," which Broadway last season ranked as another good play. Ina Claire will head the cast, making her first stage appearance in four years, during which she has been in the movies. Earle Larimore, who has appeared here in several Theater Guild productions, the latest having been "The Good Earth," will be seen opposite Miss Claire. Phil Moeller is directing "Biography."

* * *

When "Show Boat" comes along, following the engagement of "The Cat and the Fiddle," Nixon attraction next week, the musical version of the Edna Ferber novel will be presented with a number of the original cast, including Norma Terris and Helen Morgan, as Julie and Magnolia, respectively, Sammy White and Eva Puck and Jules Bledsoe, all of whom were seen here when the play was first presented prior to its New York premiere. The show boat that provided Miss Ferber with a model for her story has a local association, too, for it was Capt. Menke's Golden Rod, that was moored at Montrose for many busy months and at the downtown Allegheny wharf for many idle ones. Framed in its box office is a telegram from Miss Ferber to Capt. Menke.

The box-office sale of seats for "The Cat and the Fiddle" opens today in the Nixon, where this musical hit that had a long run in New York, last season and this, will be presented next week with most of the original cast, including Bettina Hall and George F. Meader. When it closed its New York run September 25, last, it lacked only three weeks of a complete year on Broadway, the longest run of any play of its type.

Blanche Ring, who will appear as guest star in Edwin Vail's production of "Cradle Snatchers" in the Pitt next week, has had experience in everything from stock to Shakespeare, although she was long a star on the musical stage.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

A TAXI DRIVER picked up a drunk in front of a night club and whirled him to a given address in the Bronx. Reaching their destination, the driver discovered his fare was so plastered that he was totally unconscious.

The driver yanked him from the cab and looked in the direction of his meter. It registered a sizable sum—and there was as much chance of getting money out of this stew as there was of meeting a reporter whose pants weren't shiny.

There was but one thing to do, and the driver did it. He plunged his hand into the drunk's pocket and brought out his roll. To the taximan's amazement, it was a large roll plentifully sprinkled with fives, tens and twenties.

He was about to pocket the entire wad when, some two blocks away, he saw a figure with brass buttons approaching. He hurriedly peeled off a five spot, put it back into the drunk's pocket and shoved the remainder into his own kick. Then he dropped the stew and ran to meet the policeman.

"I gotta drunk on my hands, officer," he cried. "My meter registers $4.60 and I wanna get paid. I don't want to search him without somebody lookin' on. Will you help me, officer?"

Meanwhile, as they talked, a passer-by saw the drunk lying near the cab. Quickly, he knelt by the crumpled figure and searched his pockets. All he found was the $5 note the driver had put back. So he pocketed that, stood up and stepped back.

"Hey, you" shouted the patrolman, as he and the driver hastened to the spot, "who are you?"

"I'm this feller's friend," responded the stranger.

"Yeah," said the officer. "Well, do you wanna pay his fare so that this driver won't have to lose it?"

"Sorry," replied the stranger, politely. "But I'm broke myself."

"I'll search him," grunted the policeman. He knelt down and went through the drunk's pockets. He found, of course, nothing. He arose to his feet.

"Nope," he said to the driver, "nothing on him. You took a chance on bringing him up here and you'll have to take the loss. That's the way it goes."

The taximan looked suspiciously at the stranger who stood idly by. But he could say nothing. So he stepped into his seat as the patrolman looked on sympathetically.

"The devil," muttered the driver, as he drove away, "that other guy copped the five spot. That's what I get for being honest!" . . .

WHILE dining at Moore's the other evening, some of the boys revived the yarn about the theatrical man who was casting a new show. It seems that he finally picked out a comparatively unknown actor to play the leading role.

"You're gonna be fine, my boy," said the producer. "You're just the type we're looking for."

"But I think, sir," he cried, "that I ought to explain something to you. It would only be fair. This part calls for a man who plays the violin. And I don't even know how to hold a violin."

"What's the use of worrying about a thing like this?" he smiled. "You have plenty of time. The show's gonna rehearse at least four weeks!"

THERE'S a certain comedian who is two-timing his wife beautifully. She thinks he's the last word in faithfulness and always raves to her friends about her husband's golf game.

"Doesn't my husband look marvelously well these days?" she cries. "Golf has done it for him. He's out on the links all day long—rain or shine. I never saw him looking so well in my life."

As a matter of actual fact, the comedian never sees a golf course. He fell in love about two months ago and spends practically all of his free time with his sweetheart. In order to make his wife believe the golf gag, he bought one of those artificial sun lamps, a la Spinrad, and taught his sweetie to operate it.

She gives him 20 minutes of phony sun every day, except in case of rain. And his spouse keeps raving of the marvels that golf is doing for her cheating hubby . . .

THE battered flivver came rolling down Riverside drive. It was the most dilapidated affair I've ever seen. All the paint had long since been worn away, and all you saw was a piece of tin on wheels. On the rear the driver had hung a sign:

"Don't laugh, girls," it read. "Without paint you wouldn't look so hot yourselves!" . . .

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is the most effective remedy that money can buy. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FINAL GAME AT HOME FOR TEN SKIBOS

WHEN PITT AND Carnegie Tech come together at the Stadium Saturday in the nineteenth meeting of their football series, 10 members of the Skibo squad will be making their final appearances in college uniforms on a Pittsburgh gridiron. The Scots will still have one game remaining on their schedule for this season following the tilt with the Panthers, but that is to be played on a foreign field, being the annual Thanksgiving Day number with New York University in the Metropolis.

George Kavel

The engagement with the Sutherlands, therefore, will be the last for the Tartan on local soil, and the farewell home game of the Plaid players who are to be lost to the Schenley Park team by graduation before another season arrives. Those who will be performing for the last time as college gridders before a Pittsburgh crowd on Saturday are the co-captains, George Kavel, right halfback, and Hooks Sample, left guard; Harry McCurdy and Stuart Dueger, quarterbacks; Tom Coulter, halfback; Melvin Jones, center; Anthony Ostrosky and Jacques Croissant, ends, and Jerry Siegel and Anthony Kebe, guards. Whoever happens to be coaching at Carnegie next year will have quite a replacement job on hand.

SINCE AN INJURY put Orv Mohler, of Southern California, out of the running, Eastern and mid-Western fans and critics who take all-America picking seriously contend that the quarterback award for the year ought to go to Bob Chase, of Brown, or Harry Newman, of Michigan.

Both are brilliant performers. Chase can run, kick, pass and receive passes with the best of them, and has stood out in generalship and team-lifting leadership. Newman does the punting, place-kicking and passing for Michigan, is an excellent ball carrier and has figured in nine of Michigan's 12 conference touchdowns, six on carrying the ball.

A YEAR AGO an effort was put up to make the football rule-makers see the need for some sort of protection for the back throwing a forward pass. The movement received a lot of support in this district and other sections, but some prominent coaches, including Pop Warner, opposed it and nothing was done.

Now it has been revived, and many football men in various parts of the country argue that if something isn't done about it there will be more cases of serious injury like that suffered by Errett Van Nice, of Chicago, in 1928. Certainly it would appear that the passer ought to be given the same protection as the kicker.

THE SITUATION IS this: The passer receives the ball from the center and fades backward. He picks his target, throws, and then, with his head high in the air, his body drawn erect, his arm outstretched and his eyes on the flight of the ball, he is charged to the ground by one, two or three of the opposing players. Any one of the charging enemy linemen outweighs him many pounds and all are aided by the momentum of their drive. It's all right to hurry him, for that's a legitimate pass defense, but punishing him is unnecessary and dangerous. There ought to be a penalty for such roughing, just as there is for roughing the kicker, as the passer is equally defenseless. One man rates the practice on a par with a boxer's hitting on the break or after the bell.

Fritz Crisler

POST-MORTEMS ON the Princeton-Yale tie disclose that while the Tigers executed successfully a neat trick play devised by Coach Fritz Crisler, they pulled it at the wrong time. It was a talking play, in which Halfback Purnell, pretending he could not hear signals, went back to Quarterback Kadlic, hand on ear. And while Purnell pantomimed the ball was snapped to Fullback James for a quick drive straight ahead.

The experts voted it a foxy maneuver. "Not a bit of it," said Crisler. "They should have saved it for the goal line." Developments bore him out. James advanced the ball to within scoring distance on the fake, and two plays later the Tigers tried it again, on Yale's one-yard line. The Elis grinned and smeared it. "The boys outfoxed themselves," said Crisler, sighing.

ANOTHER PLAY IN the same game, which almost brought victory to Princeton, was judged to be a trick, but actually was not. Just a bit of quick thinking. On fourth down, Kadlic called for a place kick and Fortune dropped back from tackle. The pass bobbled along the ground and the Eli ends and a tackle swarmed in.

Sensing it was too late for a kick, Kadlic grabbed the leather, took to his heels, slipped a tackle, and spotting James in the end zone hurled the ball. Princeton lost victory by a scant two inches. The ball was just that much too high for James as he leaped into the air.

THE PHILS NEXT season will have a new pitcher who is made to order for their handbox ballyard. He is Frank Pierce, a six-foot right-hander, and the significant thing about him is that he comes from the Nashville club. Nashville has the smallest baseball park in the country. On that field, Pierce won the majority of his 20 victories in 1932, and the dopesters figure that a pitcher able to win in Nashville ought to be a great success on the Quaker squash court, which is a nightmare to National League flingers. Pierce owns no blinding speed or sharp-breaking curve, but is said to have the knack of making batters hit the ball on the ground.

MANAGER BILL M'KECHNIE, of the Braves, reports that other National League clubs continue to show an eagerness to relieve him of some of his star players, chiefly Bill Urbanski, Wally Berger and Ed Brandt. Hardly a week goes by that Bill doesn't receive offers.

McKechnie says he could get so many players in exchange for his aces that he wouldn't know where to put them. But the Boston skipper believes that it takes quality of material rather than quantity to win ball games, and he means to hang on to his face cards.

THE NOTRE DAME gridders will have an old star of the same school rooting for them on Saturday when they tangle with Navy at the Cleveland Stadium. He is Joe Savoldi, once rated by many experts as the country's greatest fullback.

Taffy Abel

Savoldi was due to reach Cleveland today from the coast to fill a wrestling engagement. He will meet George Zaharias, giant Greek in a finish match tomorrow night and will remain over for the football game.

CLARENCE (TAFFY) ABEL, who was a familiar figure on Pittsburgh ice as a visiting player when this city was part of the major hockey circuit, still is the largest puckster in the National League. His closest rival is Vernon Ayres, defense man of the New York Americans. Ayers is taller than Abel, but can't equal Taffy's 220 pounds. However, neither approaches the real heavyweight of American hockey history. Harry (Bumps) Mummery, as Lloyd Northard recalls him, was as tall as Ayres, equaled Abel in waist measurement, and when down to his lowest playing weight scaled 242 pounds. He was so large that special sweaters had to be made for him. Mummery broke into the National League as a member of the Toronto Arenas in 1918. He was a defense man, and in spite of his size was a fast skater. Now he's a railroad engineer, with a run between Brandon and Broadview in Manitoba.

CASEY'S SELECTIONS

Boston College over Boston U.
Columbia over Syracuse.
Fordham over Oregon State.
Lafayette over Lehigh.
Holy Cross over Manhattan.
Notre Dame over Navy.
Pittsburgh over Carnegie Tech.
Villanova over Temple.
Army over W. Va. Wesleyan.
Harvard, Yale toss-up.

By EDDIE CASEY

Member All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Office)

On Saturday a great many teams will be playing their last game of the season. For most of them it is the objective game, and the one that they desire to win above all others.

Eddie Casey

Of major interest, if not of championship caliber, is the Harvard-Yale contest at New Haven. Regardless of the season's record, this game arouses great enthusiasm and spirit. It never has failed to be a sensational and hard-fought game, and this year will be no exception. The records of both teams for the year are very spotty. Both have lost games and neither has looked like a champion. Harvard was defeated by Brown and almost obliterated by the great Army team. Yale also has lost to Brown and the Army, but by no such score as Harvard.

YALE IMPROVED

Moreover, the Elis have shown more of a gradual improvement, and if there is an edge, they should have it. But past records count for naught in this game, and it will be a struggle to the last whistle. Possibly a few breaks will decide the issue and the fortunate one will be the winner.

Columbia, I believe, will come back strong this week in its game with Syracuse and will win. Syracuse was pointed especially for the Colgate game of last week, and I think will be a little over peak this week, which should react to Columbia's advantage.

Notre Dame, back in its stride, will take on the Navy at Cleveland, and this will not be a hard contest for the Irish. It looks like three or four touchdowns for the South Benders.

PANTHERS FAVORED

Pittsburgh will be playing Carnegie Tech, one of its natural rivals, and should win. Tech this year has not been up to the standard of the past. But this game is another in which spirit will count, and as Tech has everything to win I expect to see the Tartans shoot the works and give Pitt some troublesome moments.

Fordham is taking on Oregon State, and will have one of its hardest games. Oregon State has shown great offensive ability in games this fall, and it will be ready for the Rams. Oregon State realizes the prestige to be gained from a victory in the East, particularly against one of the strong teams of this section. Fordham will have to be in the best of shape and alert on every play to get away with this one. The long trip east will not help Oregon State a great deal, and I am inclined to think Fordham will slide through with a narrow margin.

Gridder Dies; Games Canceled

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Football, for this season at least, was ended at Colorado College with the death yesterday of Ralph McClure, 21-year-old sophomore halfback, who was injured in Saturday's game with Colorado University.

McClure died from fractures of the cervical vertebrae suffered when he tackled Halfback George Grosvenor. He leaves a widow and a 6-month-old baby.

College officials announced cancellation of the school's two remaining games, as well as unplayed freshman games.

Slugger Sought By Cubs as Xmas Gift

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—All Charley Grimm, manager of Chicago's Cubs, wants for a Christmas present is a heavy-hitting outfielder. During a brief visit here yesterday, Grimm said:

"I'm well satisfied with the present lineup and expect to stand pat on it next season except that we would be tickled to get a real heavy-hitting outfielder. Give me a heavy-hitting outfielder for Christmas is all I ask."

The Cubs have been trying to land Chuck Klein, of the Phillies, for some time without success.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE INDEFATIGABLE MAYOR—Mr. Waller's family name, which is so prominent in Texas that Waller County is named after it, probably accounts for his success in getting his name on the ballots. Nineteen times he has run for office unsuccessfully, and at the time my cartoon was drawn Waller's name was posted for the twentieth time, in this case for office of state representative, with full support and good wishes of his townspeople. Coincidentally, for the last 20 years, Mr. Waller has been mayor of Quintana, Tex., a town that does not exist. About 1910 Quintana ceased to function as a trade center and its entire population of 3,000 moved elsewhere. But, as it still retains its legal status of an incorporated municipality, its last elected mayor still is in office.

PITT CAPTAIN RETURNS TO VARSITY

By JESS CARVER

Bulldog Reider, the up-and-down captain of Pitt's up-and-down football team, is going to start the game against Carnegie Tech in the Pitt Stadium Saturday and he may run the ball club. It isn't certain that he'll be the field general, but it is all set that he's to start.

Paul Reider

The threatened demotions at Pitt are threats no longer—four of the lads are going to be perched on the bench at kickoff time Saturday.

The Bulldog, while he failed to gain much ground last week against Nebraska, looked like a real ball player again and certainly will make Pitt's followers breath easier as he prances about in the safety-man position. Mike Sebastian's handling of punts has been careless, to say the least. The Bulldog is a sure handler and just as fast as Mike on the getaway. Mike is being demoted and the Bulldog advanced, or rather, restored.

FOUR BENCHED

Others to accompany Sebastian to the second eleven will be Paul Cuba, regular left tackle; Cheesio Onder, right guard, and Quarterback Bob Hogan. Another varsity performer, Ted Daily, is not expected to see service against the Plaid, due to injuries and not to poor play. Daily was out of the Nebraska game and won't be used Saturday unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

Miller Mungas is to get the call over Rocco Cutri at quarter, John Meredith will take Cuba's place and Ken Ormiston will fill in at right guard for Onder.

Speaking of Reider's not getting any place against Nebraska (or against Army, Ohio State and Notre Dame, either) it might be pointed out that this year's Pitt eleven has found it extremely difficult to move the ball to the left. You may say that Sebastian went to the left in his touchdown run against Notre Dame, but if the Irish tackling had been what big league tackling should be, Mike would have lost ground on that run. I don't think the boys gained the size of Jimmy Durante's snozzle against the Cadets running to the left and I'm certain they didn't against Nebraska.

RAIN HANDICAPS TEAMS

Both squads were handicapped by yesterday's rain, the Tartans not even venturing out of doors. Sutherland gave his Panthers a long session in the mud and water on the Pitt practice field, while Waddell kept his Plaids inside all afternoon.

Today, the final hard drills of the week will be held. Rain or shine, both squads will be sent through long sessions. The Tartans may be expected to stress their offense, since the decision to start Tom Coulter at left halfback has necessitated the spending of all possible time in getting the big Canuck to feel at home in the backfield.

DUKES LEAVE FOR CAPITAL

The Duquesne University varsity football squad, 37 strong, left here this morning for Washington, D. C., where tomorrow night it will clash with the Catholic University eleven under the floodlights at Griffith Stadium in the Washington school's Homecoming game.

The Dukes will arrive in Washington at 4:14 this afternoon and will establish headquarters at the Willard Hotel. Following the game tomorrow night the gridders will catch the midnight train for Pittsburgh.

COMMISSIONER NAMED

The Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. has named William Baum, Jr., of Dubois, commissioner for Elk and Jefferson counties new territory in the association. An amateur boxing show will be held at Dubois on November 29.

DIRECTORS NAMED

GROVE CITY, Pa., Nov. 17.—F. R. Cottrell, J. F. McClymonds and Dr. J. D. Hoffman have been named directors of the Grove City Country Club for three-year terms.

SPORT VIGNETTES

If the average athlete had to train under the conditions imposed upon some of our boxers they never would be in condition to give their best efforts . . . Take the case of Howard (Red) Bush, the Cumberland middleweight, for instance . . . He works long hours in a silk mill in his home town, and, if he wants to train, has to go 16 miles to a gymnasium, where he seldom finds good sparring partners . . . Yet he is a consistent winner . . . He has appeared in Pittsburgh twice within recent weeks and has scored a knockout each time, in one round against Ray Jennings, whom he spotted some 20 pounds, and against Phil Wedzick, of Erie, whom he floored four times before the referee stopped the bout . . . He boxes again at the Arena tomorrow night . . . Red is the main support of a large family, his father being dead . . . For a time he boxed under the management of Dan Morgan in New York . . . Now he is being handled by Jack London, local pilot.

Martins Ferry, O., will be the scene of a banner football game on Thanksgiving Day between Martins Ferry High School and the Bobcats of Ashland, Ky. . . . Ashland has lost only one game in seven years, while the Purple Riders of Martins Ferry have not lost in their last 17 starts.

Life is a great equalizer, and everything balances itself in the long run . . . Take that Pitt-Carnegie Tech situation, as an example . . . Suppose Pitt had won decisively over Nebraska last Saturday, on top of its other great work, while Carnegie has been going through a more or less tame season with slim material . . . Would there be any great interest in their meeting on Saturday? . . . You said it, brother; nay, nay . . . But here we see folks giving the Tartans a chance because of Pitt's close call against Penn and that deadlock with the Cornhuskers the last two Saturdays . . . This despite the fact that the Tartans hardly know which way to turn to assemble a couple of good running halfbacks, with Bill Spisak on the sidelines with a bad shoulder . . . Capt. George Kavel will be on deck for one of the posts, of course, but, for the other one, Coach Bob Waddell has only Johnny Sayles to start and Tom Coulter, the hurdler, who played his first game against Xavier last Saturday, when he relieved Spisak, and Bill Carlson, who hasn't been in a game all season after having been the freshman quarterback last year.

Tech has the faculty of rising for the Pitt game. . . . It knows the Pitt system of play and how to prepare for it. . . . Often before its chances have seemed hopeless, yet it has come along to surprise. . . . This may be another such season. . . . Amazing underdog feats are a tradition in football, and Tech is in a fine spot this weekend, although a few more experienced backs would not be exactly spurned.

Just another week remains of the college football season after Saturday's games. . . . A few of the teams already have ended their campaign, among them Penn State and Princeton. . . . Harvard and Yale wind up with their clash in the Yale Bowl, and the Big Ten similarly folds up. . . . Only the Thanksgiving Day features will remain, along with a scattering few battles two days later and a handful of games the following weekend. . . . It has been an interesting season, albeit not as spectacular as some we have known. . . . And it comes down to the finish line all too soon, it seems, unless you are one of those

PREXY OUTFITS WORRY FOE

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 17.—Officials of Saturday's game between Marquette University and Washington and Jefferson will be called upon to determine whether the jerseys worn by the Presidents are "deceptive" and would assist the easterners in hiding the ball.

Scouts and coaches have reported to Coach Frank J. Murray, of Marquette, that such is the case and, if so, he will insist on a white ball in the game here.

PREXIES LEAVE TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—Washington and Jefferson's varsity will be given a final long workout this afternoon after which the Presidents will entrain for Milwaukee, Wis., where on Saturday they will clash with Marquette University in an intersectional struggle.

Battered and bruised but still elated over the outcome of their battle with Bucknell, the Presidents are anticipating an even tougher contest against the Golden Avalanche this week.

Dodgers Welcome Del Bissonette

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' worries over their first base problem, which were reaching such alarming proportions that it was reported they were attempting to buy Jim Bottomley or Pat Crawford from St. Louis, have been calmed considerably by the reappearance of a sound and agile Del Bissonette.

Del, weighing 190 pounds and full of pep, dropped into the Dodger offices yesterday and proved by various feats that he had fully recovered from the operation for a leg infection that kept him in the hospital during most of the 1932 baseball season.

The Tipoff

Now is the time for all good men (and women and boys and gals and whatnot) to come to the aid of the sports scribes with their all-America selections. Picking all-star teams is as much an American institution as running peaches or bootlegging. It is also true that no all-America team ever suits—if Joe Doakes of good old Peachbloom College isn't at fullback—zowie—in pour the letters from the Doakes constituents.

Your correspondent has been picking up colds and information riding around the country in Pullmans this fall, and has seen some pretty fair football players. The stock, however, with one or two exceptions, does not seem to be up to the snuff of former years. For example, there are no tackles as good as Mike Getto or Jack Riley or Ted Twomey or Jack Price cavorting on the nation's gridirons today. There are no Cannons, no Brombergs, no Hoffmans, no Hickmans or Bakers playing the guards, either. I haven't observed a center in the class of Daugherty, Siano or Tickner, and the Cardeos seem to be few and far between.

Just for the sake of argument, and to boost the sale of Uncle Sam's three-centers (you can't mail a guy on a postcard), your deponent offers herewith an all-star eleven of players he's observed and of men far more competent observers have vouched for as having the old stuff. Read on:

Ends—King, Army, and Skladany, Pitt.
Tackles—Krause, Notre Dame, and Walton, Pitt.
Guards—Summerfeldt, Army, and Galius, Ohio State.
Center—Ely, Nebraska.
Quarterback—Montgomery, Columbia, or Chase, Brown.
Halfbacks—Heller, Pitt, and Koken, Notre Dame.
Fullback—Sauer, Nebraska, or Horstman, Purdue.

Then, of course, for backs we have Fields and Vidal, of Army; McNamara, of N. Y. U.; Kavel, of Carnegie; Matal, of Columbia; Newman, of Michigan; Jaskwich and Melinkovich, of Notre Dame; Ask, of Colgate; Manders, of Minnesota; Cuckard, of Harvard; James, of Princeton, said to be the hardest-hitting fullback in the East; Mohler, of Southern California; Rentner, of Northwestern; Bovelli, of St. Marys, and Cain, of Alabama.

Gudd, of Temple, is a swell end, so is Red Stewart, of Tech, and Dailey, of Pitt; Kosky, of Notre Dame, and Holuf, of Nebraska. O'Brien, of Nebraska, is an o. k. tackle, as is Armstrong, of Army, and Burnette, of Michigan State. How about DeCarbo, of the Dukes, as a guard, paired with Bishop, of Nebraska? And Engle, of Penn, at center, or Kitty Gorman, of Notre Dame, or Bill Gibbins, of Brown.

The Army and Navy games are just about enough to make the difference between financial success and failure in Notre Dame's gridiron season. The "Irish" are expecting a crowd of 80,000 for Saturday's game with Navy at Cleveland and as many at the Army game in New York.

NINE SCHOOLS REPRESENTED ON ALL-CITY ELEVEN

WESTINGHOUSE, S. HILLS WIN TWO PLACES

(Note—Announcement of the all-star teams of the City League was made during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE last night, with players selected participating in the program. First publications of the teams and the reasons for selecting the honored players appear herewith.)

By JULIUS LEVIN

Nine schools out of a membership of 12 entered in the two sections of the City League are represented on the first eleven of all-star football players selected by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Westinghouse High School, coached by O. H. Burton and winner of the Section I title, and South Hills High School, coached by Ed Mazeski, are the only schools to receive two places on the first team.

Peabody, South, Schenley and Taylor Allderdice, all Section I teams, and Oliver, Perry and Langley, all members of Section II, each is awarded one position to complete the first eleven.

CONSISTENT STARS

The players selected for the first team were picked regardless of the records compiled by their respective teams. Boys who stood out prominently in all league games played by their teams have been selected as the outstanding performers in the City League.

Dick Simpson, of Peabody, and Johnny Webb, of Taylor Allderdice, receive the positions as ends on the first team. Both boys played consistently, good football this season. Both get down under punts with a burst of speed, seldom allowing the receiver to get away for substantial returns. Simpson and Webb also stand out among the best on the receiving end of a forward pass.

MANELLA AT TACKLE

Westinghouse, which meets Perry tomorrow for the city championship, was endowed with a pair of sterling tackles and it was difficult to choose between Johnny Manella and Sam Barone. Manella was awarded one of the tackle positions because of his experience. Manella is winding up a brilliant career at Westinghouse, while Barone is playing his first year. At the other tackle post is Val Rizzo, of South Hills, whose play for the 1931 city champions stamps him as one of the really great linemen in the local circuit.

Both Manella and Rizzo have played brilliant football for their respective teams. Manella's work on the line is one of the reasons Westinghouse won the Section I title. While South Hills was dethroned as champion it was through no fault of Rizzo, whose play all season was of high order.

Jimmy Alexander, of Oliver, and Johnny Economos, of Schenley, received the places as guards on the first team. Alexander's brilliant work on Ray Peters' line was one of the main reasons Oliver was in the running for the Section II championship until the final game, while Economos, of Schenley, is deserving of being ranked with the greatest guards ever turned out by Coach Walter Gross.

MISKEVICS AT CENTER

Charles Miskevics, of South High, is chosen as center. In this youngster, Coach Washabaugh had a real fighter from the opening whistle to the close, one factor in the strong showing made by the Tenth street gridders this season. His defensive play throughout the campaign left no room for complaint. He seldom made a bad pass from center.

Jimmy Manning, captain and quarterback of the Perry High eleven, representing Section II in the championship playoff with Westinghouse tomorrow, is awarded the place as field general on the merits of his great work throughout the season. What Manning lacks in carrying the ball, he more than makes up for by his ability as a field general. He has the knack of keeping his mates on their toes throughout the game and as a result Perry has come from behind many times to snatch victory from almost certain defeat.

KOPP, ROSSO CHOSEN

Eddie Kopp, of South Hills, and Mike Rosso, of Langley, the latter a brother of the Wash-Jeff star, are placed at the halfback posts. Kopp and Rosso were without doubt the outstanding ball-carriers in the City League during the regular season. Both are great broken field runners and capable of tearing off large gains consistently.

Picking the fullback for the first team presented the most difficult problem with Mike Dalfonso, of Westinghouse, and Haymond Glass, of Peabody, running neck-and-neck for the position. Both boys played great football throughout the season. The place, however, was awarded to Galloping Mike, of the Silver Lakers. Dalfonso seldom had an off day.

THREE IN TIE AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—A couple of veterans of golf's money campaigns, Al Watrous, of Detroit, and Al Houghton, of Washington, and a 23-year-old youngster, Henry Picard, of Charleston, S. C., wound up in a triple tie for first place in the mid-South open golf tournament yesterday.

Each shot a 143 for the 36 holes, but the two veterans played steady golf for their scores, while Picard romped over the course in 68 this morning and faded to a 76 in the afternoon. Watrous put together rounds of 72 and 71 and Houghton did likewise. The three leaders received $250 each, and decided they would not play off for the title.

Five players finished a stroke back of the three leaders and drew down $20 each. They were Ernie Ball, of Atlanta; Phil Perkins, of Long Beach, N. Y.; Henry Ciuci, of Flushing, N. Y.; Abe Espinosa, of Chicago, and Denny Shute, of Columbus, O.

Walter Hagen, the Detroit veteran, and four others finished with 145's. Bracketed with Hagen in this group were Whiffy Cox, of Brooklyn; Johnny Farrell, of Mamadoneck, N. Y.; Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., an Charley Rice, of Chicago.

State Body Suspends 5 Boxers, Wrestler

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—The State Athletic Commission announced today the suspension of six boxers, five of them Pennsylvanians, and a wrestler.

Adam Opalko, of Mayfield, Pa., was suspended for failing to honor a contract with Town Hall A. C., Scranton. Patrick Henehan, of Scranton, was suspended for 60 days for "unsatisfactory services" at the same club.

Edward Kalenkowski, Shenandoah boxer, was suspended for failing to appear at the Pottsville A. C., Pottsville, and William Lindes, Pottsville, was erased from the board's eligibles for not honoring a contract at the Mahanoy City A. C., Mahanoy City.

Jack Sherry, of New York, was the wrestler dropped. Tattle Kitchline, of Phillipsburg, Pa., was suspended on the complaint of the Delaware County Arena, at Leiperville.

GRID INJURY FATAL

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Robert Liker, 12, died last night of a fractured skull received while playing football last Monday. The boy was injured as he butted his head against another lad in a line play.

All-America Blankets Pop's Gift to Fans

Already hundreds of letters have been received in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Pop Warner Questions Contest, announced a few days ago.

And still they come. The mailman will be humpbacked before the deadline is reached at midnight next Tuesday.

Simultaneously comes from Warner himself an important announcement to the effect that the Stanford coach and former Pitt mentor has decided to add six prizes to the list on his own account.

SIX EXTRA PRIZES

In addition to selecting 10 questions for which the Trained Seals of the sports department will award two tickets each for the Pitt-Stanford game at the Pitt Stadium, Saturday of next week, Warner will pick six of the submitted questions and reward the writers with beautiful all-America football blankets.

The winners will be announced during next week's Trained Seals' broadcast over WCAE on Wednesday night, and the questions answered by Warner during the All-America Board-Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph-Postum Football Show broadcast over a nationwide hookup through WJAS on Friday night, when Warner will be here with his team for the Pitt battle. The blankets will be placed on display in a downtown store within a few days.

Big news? You said it!

EMPLOYES BARRED

Now sit down and help to jam up Uncle Sam's mail with your questions. Make them of a general nature of as much interest in far-off California as they will be in Pittsburgh, for, remember, they will be answered over a nationwide hookup of stations. Submit only one question in each letter and make it short and snappy to facilitate reading. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and members of their families are barred from the contest.

folks who have to sit in the cold, uncovered stands and not in a steam-heated, enclosed press box.

The delay in the signing of the Pitt-W. & J. football game for next fall, marking a resumption of relations between the two former keen gridiron rivals, is said to have been due to the fact that whether the tilt would be booked for Pitt's opener on September 30 or for its other open date, November 18, depended upon whether or not the Presidents defeated Duquesne in their game at Forbes Field, last Saturday a week ago . . . The Dukes' 19-0 victory cooked all chances for the preferred position on the slate . . . However, Pitt is glad to get W. & J. back somewhere on the schedule and the Presidents feel they will justify being placed by giving the Panthers a run, as in the olden days . . . Both teams will be hard hit by the loss of veteran players next fall, Pitt more so than the Red and Black, who, however, lose Johnson, the end, and four seasoned backs, Port and Schaffer, quarterbacks, and Zagray and Rometo, halfbacks. Bob Deacle, the fullback, will be eligible for another season.—HARRY KECK.

Central Loop May Get New Teams

DAYTON, O., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—F. W. Howell, president of the Central League, said yesterday the league contemplated including in its circuit Terre Haute and Evansville, Ind., in the event the Three-Eye League disbanded.

It was reported, but not officially confirmed, that the action may be taken today at the annual meeting of the Central League at Terre Haute.

South Bend was originally a member of the Central League, but the Indiana city experienced financial difficulties last season and withdrew during the last half of the season.

N. Y. MAY STAGE CHARITY FRAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Vanderbilt University officials have received a telegram inquiring about their attitude on the Commodores playing a post-season intersectional football game in New York on December 3 for the benefit of charity.

Coach Dan McGugin said the message came from Daniel M. Daniel. Daniel is a New York newspaperman.

McGugin said the telegram did not mention a probable opponent for the Commodores.

Heavy Rain Sends West Va. Indoors

Eastern Briefs

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Yale's entire list of injured players, including Joe Isonio, regular center, who suffered a slight concussion in the Army game, reported for action yesterday. LOCAL SQUASH RACQUET LOOP CARD SET

P. A. A. SQUAD FAVORED TO KEEP TITLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association Inter-Club League competition gets under way on Saturday, November 26, and winds up on Saturday, February 24, according to the official schedule released today by Secretary W. McCook Reed. The foregoing dates apply to class A milling only, performers of the B division going to work on December 10 and terminating on January 21.

Tournament action will follow the loop campaign, intra-club affairs being slated to run from February 5 to 19. The class B championship occupies attention from February 19 to March 4, while class A satellites will tangle for individual honors from March 5 to 12. Sites for the tourney battling have not yet been decided upon.

P. A. A. FAVORED

Five teams will tussle for class A inter-club laurels now held by Coach Harold Mortlock's crack P. A. A. array. In addition to the titled Winged Headers, Pittsburgh Golf Club, Keystone Athletic Club, Allegheny Country Club and University Club will joust in the upper sector. In the lower group, likewise dominated last season by P. A. A., four outfits—P. A. A., Edgeworth Club, Pittsburgh Golf Club and Keystone A. C.—are listed to mix.

A herculean task confronts Coach Mortlock's proteges, if they are to stage a dual repeat act in the impending races. Fortunately for the Red and Gray, loss of Capt. Fred McMahon U. S. A., has been amply compensated for by return of Perce Siverd to the fold.

GOLF CLUB STRONG

Pittsburgh Golf Club, the most serious threat to the supremacy of the current premiers, will be strengthened by acquisition of Joe Holmes, Jr., who, with Capt. Reed, city singles champion, Felix Snowdon, and the rest should furnish plenty of pyrotechnics in the course of the winter. The schedules follow:

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

Just five more days are included in the current small-game season for the shooting of grouse, quail and ringneck pheasants by the Pennsylvania hunters. In fact, the small-game hunting session is on its last lap, for, after Thanksgiving Day, there will be only a limited number of hunters in the fields and woods. On the turkey holiday, of course, there will be hundreds of gunners out for the final hunt, although the small-game season extends until November 30.

From the expressions by hunters who were out during the last few days, the country seems "shot-out," for rabbits and birds, ringnecks, quail and grouse, were scarce, or seemed so. There is no doubt there was a heavy kill of all small game during the opening days of the heavy shooting and constant chasing by the hounds. Rabbits hole-up quickly and birds are inclined to take wing far in advance of the hunters, making the shooting difficult.

THREE-DAY PLAN HIT

Bird shooters, those sportsmen who confine their hunting to ringneck pheasants, quail, but chiefly grouse, are not in approval of the present ruling of the game commissioners establishing three bird-shooting days each week during November. They prefer a straight two-weeks' shooting period, which was the former plan. There was complaint about the old order, hunters claiming it was not always convenient for them to get out in the woods during the first two weeks of November.

To favor the mass of bird-shooters, the game commissioners established the three-day shooting period, chiefly to accommodate those hunters who desired the last two weeks of November for their grouse shooting. To serve the conservation of game birds, which was the purpose of establishing the short bird-shooting periods during November, the three-day plan probably is the best, for it serves conservation and offers accommodation to bird-shooters.

CONSERVATION IMPERATIVE

It is difficult to please all of the 700,000 hunters in the Keystone State, but the conservation of game birds is imperative.

SANDLOT FRAY ON TONIGHT

Weather permitting, the Rox Rangers and Etna Sycamores will battle in a Lightweight Conference tilt tonight at Greenlee Field. The elevens originally were matched for a tussle last evening, but the inclement weather forced a postponement until tonight.

Realizing that the season will be over in a couple of weeks and that the two elevens have a postponed game to play at Ranger Field, the rival managers agreed to make a second attempt to get the contest out of the way tonight.

FLOOR RULE AMENDED

According to a bulletin sent out by the rules committee, the rule which requires a line to be drawn across the center of the floor, past which the offensive team must advance the ball within 10 seconds after gaining possession of the ball, has been amended to read that where it is mutually agreeable, this line may be fixed at varying distances on floors 60 feet or less in length.

The ruling was made to prevent teams with small floors from being handicapped and to escape bunching players in a too-limited space on the floor.

By AMOS ALONZO STAGG

For most teams football now has reached the stage of open season. Between teams of fairly equal strength the defense now has become so strong that progress is slow, and much punting and forward passing necessarily follows.

A. A. Stagg

A typical example was the Michigan-Chicago game last Saturday in which neither team could make progress with its running attack, as represented by Michigan's five first downs to Chicago's two, and the play was interspersed with much punting. Yet Michigan won, 12 to 0.

The defense against forward passing generally has not reached the same grade as the defense for the running attack. One reason for this is that in order to stop the invasions of their opponents by means of thrusts and massing and flank movements, most teams lay themselves open to an attack by air. Few teams possess the attack when supported by strong ability to defend against the combination of a powerful running forward pass strategy such, for example, as Purdue now possesses. In the Big Ten, Michigan comes nearest to perfection in this respect, but Michigan is not meeting Purdue, which would give it by all odds, the hardest test defensively.

MICHIGAN FACES TEST

The Minnesota-Michigan game Saturday at Minneapolis, by the way, may not be easy for Michigan to win. However, if Manders is unable to play the advantage will be with Michigan, for while Lund is brilliant as a runner and a passer he will probably be overmatched both in running and forward passing by the personal ability and brilliance of Newman. Against Wisconsin Minnesota did not cover passes well, which weakness, unless remedied, Michigan will be sure to take advantage of.

Michigan possesses two marvelous punters in Regeczi and Everhardus, and the team, as a whole, has so much smartness that it both creates and takes advantage of the breaks of the game. Because of its superb punting, Michigan will probably keep Minnesota fighting well down in its own territory, where, sooner or later, something is likely to happen for Michigan.

All previous defeats will be forgotten by Indiana when it meets Purdue at Lafayette Saturday. This is the one game of the season for both teams and, for that matter, for the whole state of Indiana.

For Indiana, particularly, nothing else counts. Ordinarily it takes super-courage to stand up unyieldingly against Purdue's crushing attacks or else it takes an abysmal depth of feeling to inspire the opposing team. Indiana will have the latter a-plenty, and there won't be any hesitation on the part of the Indiana players in coming up to meet the onrush of Purdue's heavy and fast-struggling backs. Indiana possesses the will to win, but I doubt whether it can hold in check Purdue's fine running attack and at the same time smother its forward passing.

ILLINOIS IMPROVES

Coach Zuppke's youngsters have come along in great shape and are getting into a winning stride. Recently the Illini have been putting up a great fight, their victory over Indiana last Saturday being a great feather in their caps. With its elusive backs, Illinois' combination of running and forward passing game makes it exceedingly dangerous, and every team it has met in the latter part of the season has been kept on the anxious seat because of it. In my opinion, Ohio will be no exception and, while Ohio possesses great scoring strength herself, it is my guess that she will have a busy afternoon Saturday at Urbana.

Official Predicts Outside Pads On Headgear

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Football headgear with padding on the outside was predicted yesterday by Bill Hollenback, gridiron official and captain of the University of Pennsylvania eleven in 1908, as a possible step toward greater safety in the game.

"I would not be surprised to see the rule regarding equipment made more severe than ever next season. By that I mean headgears may be padded on the outside."

MAXIE EASY WINNER

KIPKE PLANS TO SHIFT LINEUP

The shift, he believes, will add deception to the Wolverines' attack, since there will be two punters and three forward passers in the backfield.

Big Ten Briefs

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Minnesota's football sick list yesterday lost two of its members, but acquired a third. Roy Dea and Jerry Griffin, regular center and quarterback, respectively, were released from the students' infirmary to join the varsity at drill, but George Chaplin, reserve halfback, was confined there when he took ill.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Despite a cold rain, the Ohio State University football team went through scheduled practice yesterday. The team leaves today for Illinois.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Howard Johnson and Robert Green were promoted by Coach Bob Zuppke to guard and center, respectively, on Illinois' varsity football team yesterday, replacing Van Dyke and Bloom. Hoelt was at tackle in the absence of Cummings.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Purdue's confidence that it will defeat Indiana Saturday "to round out a schedule without a setback," rose yesterday, as it was indicated Paul Pardonner, injured quarterback, will be able to start the game.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Aroused by the annual rivalry engendered by a battle with Purdue, the Indiana University football varsity yesterday showed its best drive of the week and smothered the attempts of a freshman eleven working with Boilermaker guises. Otto Kuss proved a strong point behind the varsity line on defense.

Pittsburgh Brewing Reports Bigger Deficit

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PITTSBURGH BREWING Company reported a greater loss for its fiscal year ended October 31, 1932, than in the preceding fiscal year. This reflected the effects of the depression on the organization's ice cream, soft drink and near beer business.

The consolidated loss for the year amounted to $353,329 after deducting depreciation, interest, taxes and closed plant expense. This compared with a net loss of $166,716 in the year ended October 31, 1931, and a net profit of $36,489 in the previous year.

Interest in Pittsburgh Brewing hinges largely on the future of the organization and chances for the legalization of the sale of real beer rather than on the operating results of recent years.

To summarize the position of the organization briefly, it owns 16 breweries and has a capacity of 1,500,000 barrels of beer a year, the largest of any organization in this district.

* * *

Current Position Is Fairly Strong

A GOOD CURRENT financial position is shown by the annual report for the last fiscal year. It is possible, however, that new capital may be needed in order to restore the entire organization to a working basis after beer is legalized.

Current assets amounted to $741,593 against current liabilities of $93,244. Cash amounted to $84,843 in addition to cash of $50,650 in closed banks, at least a portion of which may eventually be recovered.

Included in the company's investments are $519,660 in United States government bonds. The balance sheet does not include these bonds among current assets. As the company stands today it appears to have enough working capital to carry it until beer is legalized. When that time comes its government securities will provide a nest egg to put the idle plants into working order. It is impossible for an outsider to determine how far this will go in restoring plants which have been idle all during prohibition.

Preferred Stock Arrears Are Large

THE COMPANY HAS $2,521,000 of first mortgage 6 per cent bonds due in 1949 outstanding. In addition it has 122,002 shares of $50 par value 7 per cent preferred stock outstanding. Dividends on this have been in arrears since September 1, 1920. This makes total unpaid dividends of $42 a share. The company also has 119,245 shares of common stock outstanding.

The Pittsburgh Brewing Company at the end of its last fiscal year, carried its physical properties at $10,565,624, after depreciation. It showed a profit and loss deficit on its balance sheet of $2,465,086.

The recent change in the attitude towards prohibition naturally makes the company's preferred stock interesting from a speculative standpoint, but the large amount of accumulated and unpaid preferred dividends places the common in such a remote position from a share in profits that it is difficult to account for its activity on the local exchange.

"Say! even if you never hit 50 you need an oil that can do 100!"

"WHAT!" you may say, "Me—a 30-mile-an-hour driver—need Gulf Supreme, that 100-mile-an-hour oil?"

Second, by out-performing special racing oils in an Official AAA test on the Indianapolis Speedway. On a sizzling day last August, it lubricated a roaring Duesenberg racer in a one-hour, non-stop run — at an average speed greater than 100-miles-an-hour! Nearly two miles a minute on the straight-a-ways!

WARNING!
. . . OIL that isn't good at high speeds, isn't good enough at ANY speed!

Drive into any Gulf station. Drain worn oil. Re-fill with Gulf Supreme. Watch it cut costs. Minimize repairs. And last longer! Use the winter grade in severe weather.

STOCK MARKET UNDERTONE HEAVY

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP.)—Stocks shuttled back and forth today, but had a rather heavy undertone. Trading was light, most buying and selling apparently originating with Wall street professionals.

Shares enjoying pool sponsorship showed considerable resistance, and a few issues made net gains, but the majority trended lower.

Wall street interest again converged largely on the unsettled question of foreign debts. The day's business news was of minor importance as a market factor.

Advices from the steel trade indicate that the pace of production is slowing down somewhat, which is in line with seasonal experience. Copper prices receded a shade further for export metal, sales being reported at 5.55 to 5.70 cents a pound today against 5.65 to 5.75 a few days ago. This recession erased about half of the recent price rally.

Dividend actions continued to attract attention. Penick and Ford, an important corn products manufacturer, declared an extra dividend of $1 a share in addition to the 25-cent regular quarterly payment. One year ago, the same company declared a 50-cent extra. National Lead voted a regular payment on its common.

PUBLIC FAITH IN BUSINESS FALTERS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—So many business and financial leaders early in the depression erroneously told the world that everything was basically sound that the public, thoroughly skeptical, is in an "Oh, yeah," frame of mind.

Faith, which three years ago was in excess supply, has become a rare quality.

Mr. Rukeyser

And it seems to me that the country has swung to an extreme in skepticism. It is the confidence and daring and hopefulness of the venture resome that provide work for the multitudes.

The press-agented leaders of the bull markets — the so-called big 10—have long since dropped out of sight. Whom is the public to believe nowadays? I think that there should be greater faith in the authority of objective data.

CUTTEN DEFENSE

After long silence, one of the so-called big 10, Arthur W. Cutten, famous Chicago wheat trader, at length emerges into the limelight with a defense of speculation. He is at least to be commended for his candor in characterizing himself as what he really is: Namely, a speculator. All too many other speculative financiers have been disposed to call themselves investors or bankers.

In view of the chronic low farm prices prevailing, Cutten's diagnosis of the effect of curtailment by the federal government of the freedom of speculators in the Chicago Board of Trade is timely. Cutten points out that through new restraints on futures trading the government discouraged speculation by individuals, and substituted speculation with public funds through instrumentalities of the Federal Farm Board.

BLAMES GOVERNMENT

Cutten goes back to the incident in 1926 when he was dragged on the carpet of the Chicago Board of Trade because, it was indicated, government officials thought he was carrying too big a bull position in wheat. Cutten asserts in the Saturday Evening Post:

"Since that day the trend of wheat prices has been steadily downward. Russian wheat has been factor in this situation, of course. So has the lessened demand resulting from a dietary change among our own people. Taken by and large, however, and including the increased acreage our farmers were induced to plant during the war, the state of the market is attributable to government action."

New Kelvinator Line Presented

Marking its entrance into the electric refrigeration field, the C. R. Rogers Company will present the full 1933 line of Kelvinators to the tristate dealer organization at a housewarming today and tomorrow in the enlarged quarters of the Rogers company, 5434-36 Penn avenue.

The entire personnel of the former Kelvinator factory branch have been retained under the new distributorship, according to the announcement made by C. R. Rogers and C. F. Gaylord, general manager of the company.

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXV.

It was easier than Elizabeth anticipated. Louisa said nothing, beyond, as the time went on, meticulously inquiring her plans for the day. It was as if Louisa didn't care—not an atom. Elizabeth found she might go to all the dances she pleased, might take golf lessons from Fred, might watch him win the tennis singles.

A sense of security rose within. She wondered, when she had time to wonder, why she had been so afraid, why she had not looked for happiness earlier?

Joyce, watching the metamorphosis, was convinced of the spell. Her own life, her grandmother's, went on as they always had. Only mother was different. In this alteration, which the child saw as beautiful, worthy of worship, she and grandmother had no part. In the dove-gray chrysalis of the mother, she had known something winged and colorful had been hidden, something which could have been a comrade for a little girl, but which had awakened, emerged, spread golden wings and flown beyond the reach of childish hands. It was not fair. Joyce began to feel, in her resentment, that she had liked the other mother better.

But grandmother remained, solid and satisfying, forever without change.

Joyce devoted herself more passionately than ever to her stray cats and lame dogs, to grandmother and her unelastic companionship.

DREAMS OF FATHER

She was at a hero worshiping stage. Her affection for Louisa was substantial, rooted, but she must love something else, something light and warm, young and beautiful. The new mother might have served, but did not. She turned therefore to an impassioned dreaming of the father she had never known.

She was a little acolyte at his altar, the altar her grandmother, high priestess of sorrow, served so unremittingly.

She questioned her mother.

"Mother, you remember my father, don't you?"

Ah, was she beginning to forget? Elizabeth went red, went white.

"Why, Joyce!"

"You never speak about him. You never tell me anything. Grandmother tells me," replied Joyce, reprovingly.

Elizabeth was silent. What could she say whose memories of her lover were dimming?

For two months she had been in constant contact with Fred Van Alstyne. Lennox had been beautiful, Lennox had been adored. Lennox had been mourned—but Lennox was dead.

Van Alstyne loved her. He had not spoken, but she knew. At first it was a knowledge she thrust from her, hiding her eyes. Yet though she repudiated it, it came to make a warmth and a singing in her heart—so good, so precious, to be loved again.

A NEW HAPPINESS

Her senses, which tragedy had frozen, stirred again as the new fire ran toward them. Her love time had been devastatingly brief, was bound up with bitterness, but it had served. She was initiate, she could remember, she was aware. Yet as against those few weeks of mindless bliss she had had 10 years of bleak widowhood. Now she was a woman, now she was fallow for the mature love. Now she trembled, knowing why; faltered along the dark path, knowing whence.

He had not spoken. But, if he should speak?

September and the round fruit reddening on trees yet summer green—a low, articulate moon, warmer than silver—wild birds flying—and Elizabeth walking home with Fred Van Alstyne from a friend's house.

Late it was, and very still, a breath of wood smoke on the clear, unstirring air, a fragrance as of sun-dried grass, late roses. He drew her into the shadows of a tall hedge and took her, closely, in his arms.

"I've waited a long time, Elizabeth," he told her. "I love you."

She hid her face against him, trembled.

"I've loved you," he said, "for many years. Surely, I have been patient enough," he urged, "and surely, for my patience there is reward."

He lifted her face, kissed her mouth. She stammered, when he had set her free, "I love you too."

"How much?"

"With all my heart."

As she said it, it was so. With all her heart, her adult heart, with all her gratitude. Not like the first, although she did not pause to know it, never like the first again—but maturely and happily, ardently, with always that sense of humility, of thankfulness.

"When will you marry me?"

That roused her from the drowsy dream. She drew away, a little. She tried to speak, but could not.

"I—I—"

He thought he understood, he told her, tenderly.

"Soon—"

They went on together, presently. There was the single light in the hall. He kissed her, he said, "Tomorrow—" and left her.

She opened the door with her key, went in, a different woman. She thought — safe — sheltered. I'll have Joyce now, all my own and she'll love me.

She knew, suddenly, how lovable Joyce was, how, with this security, this sense of being loved about her, she might win her child to her forever.

She went up the stairs. She felt as if her feet did not touch the steps. She reached the landing and put slim fingers to her disordered hair. She touched her mouth as if his kiss had left a seal there.

Passing toward her room she saw Louisa's door standing open. A light shone. "I'll tell her now," she thought.

PAIN AND TRIUMPH

Now, she had courage, tomorrow she might lack it. She knocked.

"Come in."

Louisa lay propped with pillows in the big bed, reading. A crystal dish of ruddy fruit stood near her, a tall glass of milk. She had The Book in her meager, strong hands.

On the crest of that wave of courage Elizabeth surged in to her, sat down on a chair beside the bed. Her eyes, soft, brilliant, rested on the older woman's face. She said, on a low note of irrepressible exultation, "Fred—asked me to marry him—tonight."

Louisa's face did not alter. She laid the Bible aside, putting the white satin marker in the place. She turned on her elbow.

"Indeed? And you answered —?" she asked evenly.

"I—said—yes—"

A moment of silence. Louisa thought. . . . Lennox, you hear her? She has forgotten you, Lennox!

She was stabbed with pain that Lennox should be hurt, in the peace of his Paradise; she was stabbed with triumph also.

After a moment she commented, "Fred Van Alstyne is a very fine young man. Honorable, of a blameless reputation. Have you thought what he will say when you tell him?"

"Tell him?"

A CRUEL THREAT

Elizabeth's eyes widened, her voice faltered. What did she mean—? Could she mean—? Oh, no, no—not that!

"Don't evade," said Louisa sternly as if she had spoken. "You must tell him."

Elizabeth was silent. Then she said, very low, even wonderingly, "But—so long ago——"

"The years are as hours in such cases," Louisa reminded her. "Do you believe that your sin can be so easily expiated?"

Elizabeth raised her head. She faced Louisa with a lingering of that courage which had swept her over the door sill.

"It was not sin!"

"What was it then?"

She could not answer.

"If you do not tell him, I shall," Mrs. Sheldon said.

"You!"

The old woman's eyes answered her. Even at the expense of Lennox's memory, she would tell his friend. Elizabeth rose then. Her wrap dropped from her bare shoulders, lay about her feet. Without volition, she slid to her knees by the great bed, spread her arms over the counterpane.

"Get up at once!"

She came to her feet, a little awkwardly. Mrs. Sheldon held her eyes in the vise of that invincible gaze. She spoke, unemotionally.

"I shall tell him. I permitted you to marry my son. But I shall not permit you to remarry, leaving the man in ignorance."

After a very long minute, a minute that stretched out, tense as fine wire, Elizabeth spoke, dully.

"You'll not have to tell him."

She reached her room, lay down upon the bed without undressing. The darkness was cool and deep all about her. In the midst of the darkness she burned with a bitter flame.

It never occurred to her to tell Fred Van Alstyne that he might kiss her confession from her lips. . . .

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon idolized her son, Lennox, who died from pneumonia a few days after his marriage to Elizabeth, originally picked by his mother as an ideal wife. Before her idol's death, Mrs. Sheldon had been shocked to learn that he and Elizabeth had plotted to marry before the time which she (Louisa) had stipulated. She forgave her boy—but never Elizabeth—for that. Louisa went abroad with Elizabeth soon after the latter became a widow. In England, Elizabeth's daughter, Joyce, was born and, as years pass and the family is back in New York, the child becomes more and more the image of her father. Louisa moves to mould Joyce just as she did Lennox. Elizabeth has never thought of remarriage until, after 10 years, Fred Van Alstyne, college chum of her late husband, takes Elizabeth to a club dance.

Now Go On

"Fred asked me to marry him tonight," said Elizabeth.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Evelyn Parker, "reporter" for the Manor Chapter, has returned to her job of news-gathering after spending more than a week in the house with a bad cold.

Bobby Lavine, Shady avenue member, is another of the football casualties of the Manor Chapter. Bobby, while playing in a "scrub" game the other afternoon hurt his hand.

Another member living in Shady avenue, Helen Kish, through no fault of her own, was forced to break a perfect attendance record of more than a year last Saturday, due to a bad cold. Tough luck Helen. Start over again.

Ethel Sapper, formerly of Solway street, bid all the members good-bye last week. Her parents have moved to sunny California and Ethel has promised to write and tell the club just how big the oranges grow out there.

Grace Murray, one of the most popular members of the club, was injured in an automobile accident last week. However, we are glad to report not seriously.

IN SUNNY SOUTH

Sammy Lang's parents are in the South for the remainder of the winter and Sammy, of course, is with them.

A week from today the members will be asking mother for just another little piece of the "drum stick" and just another spoonful of dressing. Little Betty King, of Forward avenue, will be asking these same questions, but in one of the hotels in New York. Her Thanksgiving vacation will be spent there.

The members were glad to hear that Ruthie Wedner is much better and has been discharged from the hospital. She hopes to attend the meeting this week.

Helen Ranch, of Phillips avenue, is planning a trip to South Bend, Ind. Going to see Notre Dame play football, Helen?

NEW MEMBERS

Many new members have joined the Manor Chapter. Among them are Billy Bartholaw, who recently moved here from Cleveland. Betty Slinger came from Maryland, W. Va., and Anna Marie Bell, Richard Danly, Arline Broida and Melvin and Phyllis Bonn, all of Pittsburgh.

The Manor Chapter has a radio songbird somewhat like Kate Smith, in voice only; she is Rita Klein a very popular member and she is going to make her debut on the radio soon.

The reports of the Rowland and the newly-organized Sheridan Square chapters will appear tomorrow.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Mano: Robert Lefkowitz, William Thomas, Jr., Harold Levy, Ruth Boozell, Marjorie Finkle, Morton Bishop, Harold Edison.

Kenyon: Andrew Dauer, James Casey, Jr.

Schenley: Geraldine Costello.

Isn't It So?

Enamel on an old car improves its appearance just as much as the same coating on the face of a matured woman.

It isn't the weather so much as it is the remarks about it that makes most of us hot under the collar.

Hello, Professor, Goodbye

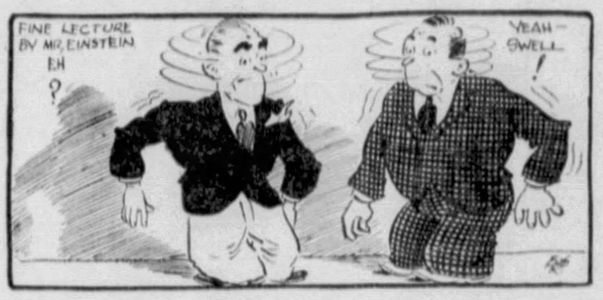
Europe doesn't want to let him go. America is anxious to nail him. Which is strange. Only 10 people in the world understand his theories. Yet everybody wants him.

The man who can bend a sunbeam will locate in the land where the moonshine bends the man.

We listened to one of his lectures once and escaped with our eyes looking like decimal points. He had us bogged down to the hubs when he explained his theory of relativity. We got as dizzy as a cow watching two trains go by.

We don't know what it is all about. But if only 10 men understand the professor, then we want him.

Provided that he brings the 10 men with him.



He will locate near Princeton University and delve into the intricate mechanisms of the inscrutable. He is under contract to boil down a theory that nobody understands.

It gets him very angry to have people nodding yes when he is lecturing. That means he ain't so good as he used to be.

He is at his best when his listener's expression is so blank he could write a letter on it. That indicates the professor has finally knocked off a formula that is so perfect it can never be proved.

If you agree with the professor he has you thrown out of the classroom for heckling.

Mr. Einstein is no ordinary scientist. He goes so far in his calculations that he makes the sun, moon and stars look like substoffices.

Now he is coming to America and will become a citizen if he can fill out the answers on the complaint blank. We will plank down even money that the world's greatest mathematical genius will take the first boat home after trying to dial a telephone.

Yessir, he will be glad to get back to Berlin where you drop in your nickel and jiggle the hook.

MELLOW DRAMMER

Hissed the villain through his teeth,
"I'm the man you're going to marry;
Not big, handsome Jack Montieth.

"Scream your lungs out, none can hear you
From this old, abandoned tower;
Long have I devised and plotted
To get you within my power.

"And big, handsome Jack, your lover,
It's the last of him you've seen;
He is lashed across the rail tracks;
Soon is due the five-fifteen.

Soon its wheels will reek of gore.
In two minutes at the latest
Handsome Jack will be no more.
"Soon will come the dear old parson
To make you my lawful wife.
When he's finished with the service
You will be my own for life.
"Hark! I hear a footstep sounding.
The old parson it must be.
Calm yourself and heed my warning;
Tell him not what I told thee."
But, instead of the old parson
In rushed handsome Jack Montieth.
And he spoiled the villain's facial,
Causing him to swallow teeth.
Then Jack, with a face determined,
Threw the villain from the window
Of the old, abandoned tower.
Jack then cried, "Ha cha, cha, baby!"
In his arms she nestled, shy,
And he told her of his rescue
By the parson, passing by.

France Certainly Can Pay, But Wants to Unload Her Burdens

The collective effort of our wartime associates to escape from their liabilities to the United States Treasury is proceeding in accordance with schedule.

As soon as the American election was out of the way, the debtors began to beseech us for mercy. Even France, with the largest per capita holdings of gold in the world, asks for further forbearance despite the fact that the present contract has wiped out all indebtedness except that contracted after the armistice, according to former Secretary Mellon.

With the setting of a foreshadowed deficit this fiscal year of a billion dollars in the American budget, the European governments picked an unpropitious occasion for suggesting transferring additional burdens to the backs of American taxpayers.

The propagandists for the debtor countries emphasize their unsubstantiated assertion that remission would restore America's export trade—an assertion which is unproved and unprovable.

This statement is made in face of the well-known fact that during this year, in which the moratorium was graciously given to our debtors, foreign countries have been going to extraordinary extremes TO TAKE IN AS LITTLE AMERICAN GOODS AS FEASIBLE.

Great Britain, France and others have hit upon the happy thought of easing THEIR budgetary problems by ADDING TO THE BURDEN OF OURS.

Curiously enough, their ballyhoo has impressed some Americans, who ought to know better, with the bizarre idea that debt postponement or cancellation will restore prosperity, irrespective of what we do with such really basic problems as unemployment, unbalanced production, financial and banking malpractices, and the whole array of items of mismanagement and misgovernment which have prolonged hard times.

The threat of default should not stampede the American Congress. Default would injure the credit of the borrowers for generations. It would not impair the standing of the creditor.

So far as the Allies are concerned, our government has already treated them vastly more liberally than private debtors have fared.

The war admittedly was a ghastly waste, from the strictly economic viewpoint, but why in the name of fairness should its unliquidated cost be saddled on our country, which almost alone of the belligerents was concededly not responsible for starting it?

Opportunity Lost Again

The Cost of Garbage Removal Can Be Reduced If a Long-Term Contract Is Awarded.

For the second successive year the low bid for the removal of Pittsburgh's garbage has been rejected.

For the second successive year an opportunity to reduce the excessive cost of this service has been let slip through the city's failure to arrange for a long-term contract.

Joseph Miele, New Jersey contractor, who offered to remove the garbage next year for 63 cents a ton less than is asked by the American Reduction Company, present holder of the contract, is not to be permitted to do so, because he proposed to bury the garbage on a tract in Patton Township, and objections have been raised.

Last year the low bid was rejected on the ground that the bidder would not be able to erect the plant for the disposal of the garbage in time.

The bids of the last two years, together with the rates charged for garbage disposal in other cities, show that Pittsburgh is paying too much.

We are paying too much because the contract runs for only one year. Bidders like Miele do not care to erect a disposal plant if they cannot be sure of more than one year's business. Many who might be attracted by a long-term contract do not bid at all under the present arrangement. The consequence is that the American Reduction Company is without formidable competition and gets the business year after year on a high bid.

The city must not let the opportunity to cut this item of expense pass next year. As Councilman Charles Anderson suggests, the Department of Health should start at an early date to look for bidders on a long-term contract for removal of garbage, beginning in 1934.

Subpenas Are Issued

The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee Has Yielded Half-Heartedly, But It Has Yielded.

The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee has yielded to public sentiment and issued subpenas for the banking and brokerage accounts of all living former and present members of the Public Service Commission.

The committee has yielded half-heartedly, but it has yielded. And so not only Oliver K. Eaton, the committee's counsel, who demanded the subpenas after the officials concerned had, in most cases, refused voluntarily to submit the records, has won a victory. The people of Pennsylvania have won, too.

The lukewarmness of the committee is plainly shown in the encouragement it offers to the persons subpenaed to go into court and question the committee's authority.

They are entitled, of course, to all the protection that the law affords. The committee should not knowingly infringe the commissioners' legal rights. Yet it seems queer that the Senators should be so much concerned lest their own attorney do something illegal.

The whole incident strengthens the suspicion that the committee does not relish the idea of a thorough investigation of the bribery charges.

Men DO Love Women

Whenever I look at a girl in one of these new little half-portion hats, with her ears exposed, a long skirt flapping about her ankles and a half-high collar distorting her neckline, I can only reflect (gratefully) that men MUST love women, after all! Oh yes, they must! And how!

* * *

They have loved us in so many weird and grotesque disguises and makeups. We simply can't disillusionize them, no matter how hard we try!

* * *

They've loved us in pre-historic days, when we went around with rings in our noses and our hair wild and scrambled—and they've loved us in the huge ruffs and jeweled stomachers of Elizabethan days.

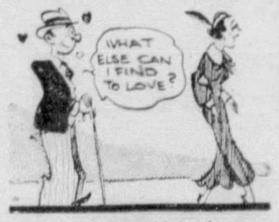
They've loved us in hoop-skirts and powdered wigs a foot high—and in skirts that stopped above the knees, boyish bobs, shaved necks and plucked eyebrows.

* * *

They've loved us in merry-widow hats, pompadour rats, chignons, false puffs, cast-iron corsets and bustles that protruded 24 inches, giving us the effect of sacred camels, with spinal disease.

* * *

They've loved us when we were fat and buxom and roly-poly, with figures like a pair of pudding-bags. And when we were hipless animated bones, with collar blades like hat-racks and elbows like can-openers.



They've loved us in curl-papers, magic wavers, boudoir caps and kimonos, with unpowdered shiny noses and pomaded hair. And they've loved us in long ear-pendants, with whitewashed noses and blood-red finger-nails.

Don't tell ME that women dress to please men! They don't HAVE to!

* * *

Woman may paint herself up to resemble a totem-pole, disguise herself to look like a boy and bant herself down to a living skeleton—and still man will recognize her as something he can't do without.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Manhattan, once so aloof in personal contacts, now delights in the huddle. This, psychologists aver, always is true of people when courage wanes. As the individual is super-conscious of the tug for companionship in calamity, so is humanity in the bulk.

I've wondered if many drooping figures in the long breadlines have not been seeking the cheer of conversation as much as the warmth of hot coffee. In the side street sleepy shadows these nights, the forlorn flotsam chatter. It is proverbial, such outcasts rarely talk.

On the park benches at sundown, are little flurries of animated conversation. Along a sweep of upper Riverside Drive, a recent sundown, a fellow, muffled in a frayed coat, hallooed from the stone wall: "Hey, buddy! See you a minnit?" It was not the plaint of the moocher.

He had a deck of soiled cards and rather wistfully inquired if I wouldn't play a little "casino or something"—hastily adding "not for money." He explained that he was lonely. In any other time, it would seem a "come on." Idle before a shop window, and soon a stranger is chirping at your side.

Theater lobbies, subways, bus tops bristle with more talk than ever before. In cheap restaurants patrons no longer rush away. Many have no place to go. So they sit and chat. So much so, many have signs reading: "Please make way for others immediately upon finishing."

Modern love is bewildering, but has engaging frankness. This afternoon, I was the only patron at the soda counter of a Forty-second street drug store. A sheikish young soda jerker broke his monotony by lifting the receiver, giving a number and asking for Margaret. "Do something for me, will you?" he inquired. Evidently there was an affirmative for he continued: "Give me a little idea how crazy about me you are." It was satisfactory, for he clipped off an enthusiastic "O. K.," and hung up. Then, with a hand-rubbing glow and wink, ecstasied: "What a number!"

Texas Guinan has bowed out of the night club picture. Each successive return met increasing aloofness on the part of the Good Time Charlies, who used to notch a feverish new high at her "Hello, Sucker!" cheerio. Nothing has happened to Texas. She still is her effervescently joyous, blonde and pearly-smiled self, but something happened to a spinning world. And that's something not even Tex's popularity can check.

To a large number, at least, the foppish Clifton Webb has become the best-dressed actor on the American stage. If one cares for wide pleated pantaloons, swooping balloon-like from the vest line to a graduated cuffdom—and I'm a silly who does—no one tops Webb. And no one else has acquired his jaunty hank-panky with a lapel flower of corn blue. He's the last of the dandyfied dancing boys whose lilting postures were excited by the real maestro—Vernon Castle. In middle years, Webb still is the typical "mamma boy," going no place without her.

* * *

Actors are not alone in a penchant for odd sartorial setups. Consider the producers! John Golden's deep blue collars, for instance. The late Ziegfeld's collars of lavender. The hatless Earl Carroll. George White's blue serge and midget bow tie of black. The unshaven Jed Harris. Arthur Hopkins' bowler derby. Then, of course, there was Belasco's trick collar. Oscar Hammerstein's conical silk hat and Abe Erlanger's cap abaft.

* * *

Franklin D. Roosevelt's odd smile inspired many editorials during the campaign. But most public smiles have always struck me as an effort. For instance, the only smile in the movies that ever seems real is Jimmy Durante's. The nimble-toed Marilyn Miller spoiled her art, for me, with a prop grin. The most gracious and warming smile I ever saw was Mark Twain's. That was because he never smiled unless he meant it.

* * *

I have, man and boy, been introduced to Jesse L.— or is it R.?—Lasky more than a dozen times. Frank Case presented me at least five. But so evanescent is my personality, he has just got around to remembering me. I permit him to get hip-deep in a bow, then appraise him from toe to head in a detached way, and look coldly away. It is more fun.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

For a year I've been traveling, studying America. Not big-money America; but the REAL America, where most of our 120,000,000 live—the America of mountain shacks and prairie dugouts; city tenements; cotton mill hovels; ranch homes, and backwoods huts.

And I'm telling you—something big has happened to this country of ours!

For 50 years now I've been going over much of this same trail; talking to these same people; living with them, working with them on ranches, in mines, in mean city apartments—wherever I could find my three squares. And, up to the last five years they hadn't changed much in all that time.

What was happening in the outside world? They didn't know. They took what was handed to them, and if it was a raw deal which it generally was, they felt a little bewildered, but tried to make the best of it.

"The crowd," said he, "only feels; it has no mind of its own which can plan. The crowd is credulous. It destroys, it consumes, it hates and it dreams, but it never builds."

That wasn't a very American way to feel about people, nor even a very humane way. But I suspect that Mr. Hoover was sincere in his belief that that was the right way to feel about the masses, judging by their acts. And it certainly was the way most rich, powerful persons did feel.

But they're not going to feel that way much longer. For something has happened that will throw a monkey wrench into all such smug and snooty theories.

THE RADIO HAS HAPPENED—AND THE CROWD IS NEITHER CREDULOUS NOR IGNORANT ANY LONGER.

Everywhere you can see the change, in the places where changes never come before.

There was a young mountaineer—gaunt, lanky youngster, ragged and undernourished. He'd come down from some poor little clearing 20 miles away to do a little marketing. A hollow-eyed, flat-breasted girl; five barefoot, half-starved youngsters and a couple of flea-bitten "houn' dawgs" stood staring behind him as he talked.

"Time's come, m'am, when they can't put things over on us the way they usta. None of them rich men—not any more. We'uns air wised up now. We got a radio up t'our place. Nothing much to do now, so most all day and night folks gather round and lissen in to them speeches.

"Rich folks thinks that folks like us ain't quite bright. But they're wrong. We're bright enough. Trouble with us was, we didn't know what was going on. Didn't get the hang of it. But we got it now. Every night we get it straight, jess as if we was right there. And now we know. And things is suah going to change, m'am, now that we know."

THEY'RE WISED UP NOW.

THEY KNOW WHAT'S HAPPENING.

AND THINGS ARE GOING TO CHANGE—NOW THAT THEY KNOW.

A ragged, half-starved man talking. Many millions o' half-starved men and women listening in an' talking in city slums and wilderness ranches. Women and men who have been shut off, nearly all their lives, from the world of privileges and powers, by an impenetrable wall of ignorance and poverty.

And because they were shut off, because they couldn't get the facts straight, the Privileged Few thought they couldn't think, couldn't plan, couldn't act.

BUT THEY'RE WISED UP NOW.

AND I'M TELLING YOU, P. F.—LOOK OUT!

FOR MEN LIKE THESE, AS RAGGED AS THESE, AS MAD AS THESE—ONCE MADE AMERICA. AND THEY CAN MAKE IT ALL OVER AGAIN!

New York State's Anti-American System

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy" "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Again we call attention of the country to the fact that New York state has a constitutional provision which makes it impossible for the people to rule. There is an impression, we believe, that in this country we have representative government, and that the decisions on public policies are made by the vote of the majority at the polls. In most commonwealths this is true. It certainly is not true in New York.

Thus, this year, Herbert Lehman was elected governor by a majority of about 900,000. That is a remarkable majority. It is indicative of a very clear intent on the part of the people. The intent was to have the policies and principles of Mr. Lehman put into operation at Albany.

But under the unrepresentative, un-American provision of the Constitution of New York, even a 900,000 majority leaves one branch of the Legislature in possession of the foes of the policies for which the people voted. The Assembly is Republican.

This is not due to people voting for Lehman for Governor and for Republican members of the Assembly. If that were true, it would be stupid, but still it would represent the will of the people. But it is not true. This amazing condition is brought about by the fact that we have rotten boroughs—of which England rid herself in a great electoral revolution generations ago. That is, Democratic districts in Democratic communities represent many thousands more people than Republican districts in Republican communities. Due to that, and to the fact that the makers of the fundamental law provided that sections, and not people, are the thing.

* * *

Smith Was Handicapped

The result has not made for orderly representative government in practice. Thus Alfred E. Smith, representing the will of the great majority of the people in the gubernatorial office, constantly had to encounter and fight a minority in control of a branch of the Legislature, or of both branches. His enormous popularity, the justice of his policies, his manner of meeting opposition frequently forced the minority to yield—or enough of the minority to pass the administration measures.

Franklin D. Roosevelt has been handicapped in his work, for which he had a mandate with a popular majority of 700,000, all through his four-year tenure. And now Herbert Lehman, it seems, must suffer from this same anti-democratic, anti-American situation.

* * *

Need Any More Be Said?

The people rule when it comes to the election of a governor and—since the constitutional amendment making possible the popular election of senators—of United States senators. This is fortunate for New York and the country. Under the old system of electing senators, with the anti-democratic, anti-American provision in the New York constitution, Senator Wagner would have faced a desperate fight and had a slim chance for re-election this year.

His enormous majority clearly indicates the people's wishes. But with this enormous majority of the people for him he would have been defeated for re-election this year, for the Republicans weirdly enough have a majority of one in the Legislature. This majority in the Legislature stands for the minority of the people. And were we still electing United States senators by the legislatures the will of the people of New York would have been thwarted and one of the greatest, most constructive and statesmanlike senators in Washington would have been kicked out of office.

Need any more be said?

* * *

An Ambitious Work

And this suggests something that should be gratifying to the friends of democratic institutions. The defeat of Senator Wagner would have convinced millions that the people have no powers of appraisement or appreciation. For six years he had dedicated his mind and heart to the highest kind of constructive public service. He not only had discussed and voted on measures—he had mastered their meaning and potentialities by the most exhaustive and meticulous investigation possible.

A member of the minority in the Senate, he had not been content merely to oppose. He set to work upon the theory that even a minority member, representing a great constituency, may properly function in a constructive way. He did. When the great crash came, his humanitarian instincts aroused his interest in the working masses—so many on the streets. But—and this is the measure of his statesmanship—he sought something bigger than mere temporary relief. He sought ways, not merely to tide the workers over a temporary disaster, but to protect them against a repetition of it in the future.

This was an ambitious work.

Thinking in terms of humanity and society he summoned to his aid great economists, social workers, thinkers, and prepared a program in a set of measures. Thus it is not an exaggeration to say that in statesmanship Bob Wagner, dealing with existing conditions, has loomed larger than any other man in public life.

* * *

The Masses Did Not Forget

But there was nothing spectacular or especially colorful in the measures or in Wagner's method of presentation. The thinkers admired his spirit, respected his purpose but would the great mass of the people appreciate? We are prone to think that in a democracy the people do not think; that there is no gratitude in republics; that unselfish public service makes no appeal.

Now note the answer. Wagner was not featured in the campaign. The press was largely filled with stories of the presidential and gubernatorial contests. Mr. Wagner's opponent, Mr. Medalie, is an able and gracious gentleman with many personal qualities to attract. And the people went to the polls and gave Wagner a spectacular majority.

The people had thought. The masses did not forget. And the enormous vote given to Wagner carries the reassuring message that in a democracy the man who truly serves with intelligence and heart can count upon the appreciation of the people.

But what a reflection on the kind of system New York has that but for the much abused Constitutional amendment providing for popular elections of senators Bob Wagner would have been defeated; and, indeed, never would have been given the opportunity to serve at all. Thus, along with a justification of democracy we have a justification of the popular election of senators, in the triumphant return of Wagner to the Senate.

These are things of interest all over the country on which New Yorkers may well meditate—that 900,000 majority for Lehman with a Republican Legislature, the inevitable defeat of Wagner under the old system of electing senators.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Have you and your life partner reached a condition where either of you are likely as not to start a quarrel?

As time goes on it seems to require less and less to provoke an argument which soon becomes heated.

It is easy for you to become sarcastic and your partner is getting to be just as free with cutting remarks.

You would not say that matters are reaching a critical stage, but such a condition often results from actions and words such as you both use at times.

You had something interesting to tell and your wife told you some of the interesting and amusing things she had seen and heard.

You can think back to the time when you reached home with a smile and were met in like manner and settled down for a comfortable evening.

But somehow of late years there seems little of that sort of thing.

You may have had business annoyances and you are ready for an argument with anyone.

Very likely your home partner is in the same frame of mind, and it takes very little to set off a fiery discussion that spoils what might be precious hours.

If you are wise you will do what you can to change this condition.
